ELECTRIC CARS CRASH AT HIGH SPEED

15 HURT!

CARS HURLED FROM AN EMBANKMENT

Fifteen people were badly injured in a terrific head-on collision between two heavily loaded electric cars on the Boston and Worcester Street Railway at the turnout switch at White's Corner, two miles from Southboro at 12:15 o'clock to-day. A number of women were among those injured. They were removed in electric cars to the South Framingham Hospital.

The accident occurred on a single track portion of the road at a point within one hundred feet of the turnout.

Failure to obey orders transmitted by telephone and indicated by the block signals is said to have caused the Boston-bound car to leave the turnout, where it should have, it is said, awaited the passing of the Worcester car.

Motorman Dough o fthe Boston-bound car and Motorman Dunn of the other car, are both badly injurd. The former is believed to be fatally hurt.

So terrific was the collision that the Boston car was hurled down a thirty-foot embankment. The Worcester coach was thrown halfway down the steep incline.

The Boston coach, heavily loaded with men, women and children, left the switch at 12:13 o'clock and started down the single track, when, to the horror of its passengers, another big coach, running, it is reported, at its full speed of forty-five miles an hour, loomed into sight around a curve and crashed with terrible force into the Boston coach, which had gained good headway.

HURLED DOWN STEEP EMBANKMENT

The force of the collision reduced the front ends of the two big cars to a twisted mass of steel and shattered wood. The Boston coach was hurled down the steep embankment and lay broken and crushed in the ditch below.

The Worcester car lay a few feet above it.

The cries of the injured, the shrieks of women and the crash of the collision attracted the attention of a gang of workmen nearby, who are engaged in constructing the double track. They rushed to the scene of the accident and rendered every assistance in their power.

Messengers were dispatched to White's Corner, and telephone messages for surgeons were dispatched to Southboro, South Framingham and Westboro. The work of rescue was instantly begun, and the dying and the badly injured were removed from the shattered fragments of the great electric cars.

Special to the Boston American.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Cleveland, Aug. 1.—Collins's Boston Champs received a cordial reception when they trotted out on the diamond this afternoon for their first game against the Blues. In fact, it was one of the greatest send-offs ever given a visiting team.

Most of the fans realized the Bostons have been up against the "hoodoo man" for the past two weeks, and they rather sympathized with them. Larry Lajoie strutted about the field as proud as a peacock. One would have believed that he already had the entire series of four games tucked under his off-wing.

LAJOIE IS CONFIDENT.

According to Larry's own statements, he is pretty confident of winning the series from the Bostons. "We are out to win this series," began Lajoie. "We all realize that

RUSSIANS OUTFLANKED IN TERRIFIC BATTLE

MUSCOVITES DRIVEN BACK BY THREE JAP ARMIES—GEN. KELLER KILLED.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Japanese have turned General Kuropatkin's right flank. The three Jap armies, under Generals Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku, have made a combined attack on the main Russian force at Hai-Cheng.

General Count Keller, commander of the Second Siberian army of the Russians, was killed by a bursting shell, while opposing the Japanese advance along the railroad. The Japanese have steadily advanced. There has been great loss on both sides, but the Russian casualty list is enormous.

General Kuropatkin, in a dispatch to the Czar, confirms the report that his right flank was turned. The battle has raged since yesterday, and will, it is believed here, result in the utter defeat and possible surrender of Kuropatkin.

The dispatch from General Kuropatkin, dated yesterday, while the battle was at its height, but before the death of General Keller, follows:

RUSSIANS DRIVEN BACK.

"Three Japanese armies have renewed offensive operations on our southern front. Our rear guard made an obstinate defence until the appearance of considerably superior forces of the enemy, and then gradually retired in the direction of Hai-Cheng. A detachment near Simou-Cheng, fifteen miles southeast of Hai-Cheng, successfully withstood the enemy until 3 in the afternoon.

"On our eastern front the Japanese began the offensive this morning against our

POLICE ARREST 50 FOR RIOTING AT STOCKYARD

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Fifty men have been arrested by the police for rioting in the stock yards district.

The majority of the prisoners were taken after the big riot at Forty-third and Wood streets, into custody as the result of outbreaks of disorder.

The cells at the new city and stock yards police stations are jammed with prisoners, dozens of whom were not booked, and thus prevented from being arraigned in the police courts to-day.

The position of the livestock handlers who struck at the stockyards in sympathy with the packing house employes, and afterward returned to their duties, handling stock for the packing companies involved in the strike as well as for the independent plants, has been made plain by the official statement that their action was taken in obedience to their union officers. It is declared that they stand ready to strike again if it appears necessary.

A report that the fire insurance underwriters had issued an order cancelling policies on packing establishments on account of the strike, and because of the housing of so many men in the building, has been positively denied by the insurance companies' representatives.

"Things and the Man" By Rudyard Kipling

"And Joseph dreamed a dream, and he told his brethren: and they hated him yet the more."—Genesis, xxxvii., 5.

Rudyard Kipling.

OH, ye, who hold the written clue
To all save all unwritten things,
And half a league behind pursue
The accomplished fact with flouts and flings,
Look, to your knee your baby brings
The oldest tale since earth began,
The answer to your worrying—
Once on a time there was a man.

HE single-handed met and threw
Magicians, armies, ogres, kings;
He lonely mid his doubting crew,
In all the loneliness of wings;
He fed the flame, he filled the springs,
He locked the ranks, he launched the van
Straight at the grinning teeth of things.
Once on a time there was a man.

THE peace of shocked foundations flew.
Before his ribald questionings;
He broke the oracles in two
And bared the paltry wires and strings;
He headed desert wanderings;
He led his soul, his cause, his clan,
A little from the ruck of things.
Once on a time there was a man.

THRONES, powers, dominions block the view
With episodes and underlings;
The meek historian deems them true,
Nor heeds the song that Clio sings,
The simple central truth that stings
The mob to boo, the priest to ban,
Things never yet created things.
Once on a time there was a man.

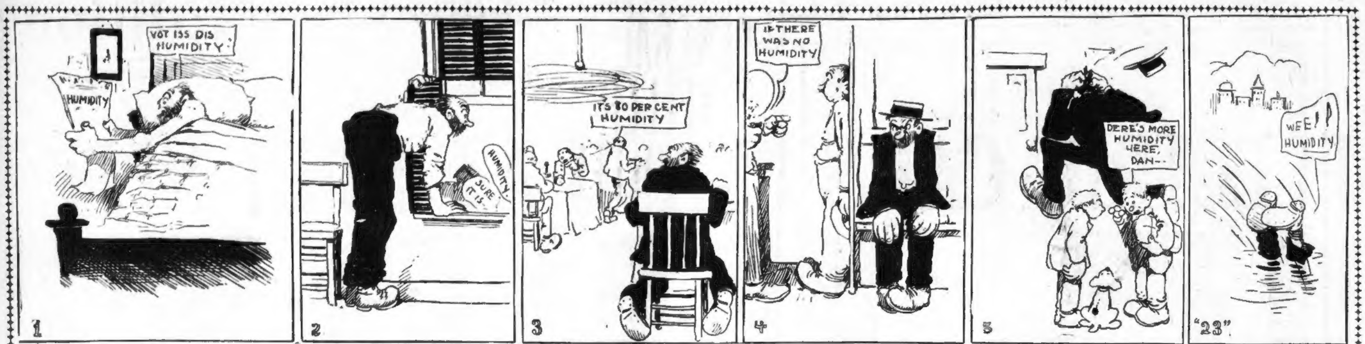

A BOLT is fallen from the blue,
A wakened realm full circle swings
Where Dothan's dreamer dreams anew
Of vast and forborne harvestings:
And unto him an empire clings
That grips the purpose of his plan.
My lords, what think ye of these things?
Once in our time is there a man?

HEAT PROSTRATIONS.

PETER JOLANSKI, forty years old, of No. 66 Salem street, overcome at Washington and Brookline streets. At the City Hospital. His condition is reported serious.

UNKNOWN MAN, overcome on Tremont street, near Boylston street. In a critical condition at the Relief Station.

After getting up to the ninety mark to-day the temperature fell a trifle, only to rise again nearly as high. It was eighty-seven at 3 o'clock.

The fourteen mile breeze went down to a six-mile rate, dispelling what hope there was of relief. The day has been one of the worst of the Summer for heat and humidity. Boston has suffered terribly. A shower is needed to restore comfort.

Exodus to the Beaches.

Already the daily exodus to the beaches is well under way, several hours ahead of time. All who can get out of their offices, stores and shops are seeking some cool spot where they can find relief from the city's burning atmosphere.

The main hope of a brisk wind has failed. It was realized that the temperature would be high all day. The morning breeze of fourteen miles an hour helped out through the early hours, givig an occasional cooling draught.

But just before noon this wind dropped to a six-mile breeze, a mere capful against the heavy air.

On the way to the City Hospital to be treated for injuries received in an accident, Peter Jalanskie, forty years old, of No. 66 Salem street, North End, was stricken with the heat and fell to the walk at the corner of E. Brookline and Washington streets, this morning. An ambulance was called and the man was taken to the hospital for which he had started on another errand. He is in a dangerous condition.

The humidity is 77, seven points above normal.

No Relief Is Promised.

It is feared that the heat will continue through to-night and that it will not be cooler till to-morrow.

From a temperature of 74 at midnight the mercury dropped down to 72 at 4 o'clock. Then it rose, slowly at first, then on the jump.

Bostonians going to their morning work could tell then that the day was to be a scorcher.

In the crowded tenement districts swarms of humanity have poured out from the stifling rooms, trying in vain to get a breath of fresh air outside.

A year ago to-day Boston's highest temperature was 76. Brisk breezes were blowing and humidity was low. It was an ideal day. This cheerful information is given out by the weather man, as he reels off his list showing how different things are August 1 of this year.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE HOT WEATHER, AS SIZED UP BY "TAD."

GEN. BLACKMAR OUT FOR CHIEF OF G. A. R.

Boston Grand Army men are working hard to secure the election of Wilmon W. Blackmar, of Boston and Hingham, to the highest Grand Army rank in the country—commander-in-chief of the national G. A. R.

The election will be held in Symphony Hall on Wednesday, August 17, in the midst of the national encampment week here. The Boston veterans, backed by State and Eastern comrades, say: "We'll elect Blackmar."

The present commander-in-chief is John C. Black, of Washington. The principal competitor against General Blackmar is Colonel John Schowtz, of New York. He has the backing of the New York delegations, supported by several other States. He will make a lively campaign against General Blackmar.

Will Probably Win.

A Grand Army headquarters in the New Old South building, it is said that there is no doubt that General Blackmar will be elected as New England is solid for him and word comes from Pennsylvania that the General is the Quaker State's favorite. Pennsylvania is to be the banner state, sending a delegation of 9,500 men, and with this large delegation it is probale that the Boston man will win.

General Blackmar served through the war and won rapid promotion. He enlisted in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Regiment of Cavalry and afterward served as lieutenant in the First West Virginia Cavalry. He was in twenty-two battles and at Five Forks was promoted to captain, on the field, by General Custer, and later given a medal of honor. He has been connected with the Grand Army for thirty-six years, serving as post commander, judge advocate for four terms, and department commander of Massachusetts. For ten years and under four administrations he served as judge advocate general on the Governor's staff.

One of the features at encampment week will be the presence of seven war vessels in the harbor, including one battleship and six destroyers. The vessels that will be detailed to Boston are the Texas, Hartford, Whipple, Worden, Truxton, Hull and Hopkins. The vessels will probably arrive on Sunday, August 14.

Followingare distinguished guests who have accepted the invitation to be on the reviewing stand, Tuesday, August 16, when the big Grand Army parade takes place: General Henry M. Duffield, of Detroit, Mich.; Colonel Henry Wygant, Twenty-second U. S. Infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel William C. Capelle, Assistant Adjutant General of Massachusetts; R. Roller Richardson, U. S. A., surgeon; Lieutenant W. W. Low, U. S. Marine Corps; Grigadier Generals William H. Bisbee, H. B. Carrington, retired; G. A. Goodale, retired; W. P. Hall, S. M. Mansfield, Otis H. Marion, John Moore, John Simpson, retired; Judge Advocate General Joseph Tanner, Lieutenant Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., Ex-Governor W. Murray Crane, O. W. Holmes, United States Supreme Court; Attorney-eneral William H. Moody, Louis F. Corea, Ambassador from Nicaragua; Governor John L. Bates, Governor Garvin of Rhode Island, Governor John Lamb of Maryland.

STRIKE ISSUE, COURT TO RULE

The question of whether it is any worse for a strike leader to comment on an arrest by the police than for another man to do so was the main point at issue in the continued hearing of President William J. Cunningham, of Somerville Tube Workers' Union, in Somerville Police Court to-day, on charge of disturbing the peace. Judge Wentworth reserved his decision, continuing the case again to August 12, for judgment. He commented on the fact that Cunningham was president of the strikers' union and, as such, liable to influence other men by the power of example alone.

On the night of July 25, Cunningham saw a fellow-striker arrested. The police say Cunningham crossed the street and shouted out criticisms of the police, saying they were using undue force. Cunningham was arrested, charged with disturbing the peace. Cunningham's counsel to-day represented that Cunningham merely spoke loud enough to let the officers know he did not approve of the way they were handling the prisoner.

THIEF DUG UP HIS POTATOES

W. E. Trussell, of No. 28 Lothrop street, Newtonville, has had surprising success raising potatoes, the result exceeding his greatest expectations.

Talking with a neighbor who called on him before church time, Mr. Trussell gave an account of the method he used to cultivate the crop.

"I selected twenty-five seedlings," he said. "I planted them in a box in the cellar last Winter. By Spring they were promising sprouts. I chose good land and transplanted them when open weather came. They have grown finely and are now ready to be dug up. I have twenty-five hills, and I'll bet you never saw potatoes like——"

The friend never had. Some thief had ravaged the potato patch Saturday night and left nothing but gaping holes, where once stood big potato vines. Newton police are now on a still hunt for the missing potatoes.

WHITE HEATHER WINS AT COWES

COWES, Isle of Wight, Eng., Aug. 1.—Regatta Week, the annual event at which yacht-racing England enjoys itself to its heart's content, opened to-day with promises of a good breeze later in the day. To-day is a bank holiday, and there was a record crowd of spectators on boats in the harbor and along the shore.

The first race of the day, that for the Commodore's cup of 100 guineas, was fought out by some of the best yachts of the world. Kaiser William's American built yacht, Meteor II., was on scratch, while Commodore Morton F. Plant's Ingomar had a handicap of four minutes. The other yachts had handicaps of 22 minutes or more.

The Ingomar was fourth to cross the starting line, with the Meteor fifteen minutes behind her, unable to make headway because of the light breeze and an opposing tide.

The yachts at times during the race hardly stemmed the tide, and owing to the fluky wind which was blowing the race was stopped on the first round. The Ingomar finished first, but on time allowance the White Heather took first prize, the Brynhild second and the Ingomar third.

FOUND DYING; FEAR MURDER

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 1.—Frank H. Stearns, aged twenty-eight, was found unconscious at his home on the Banfield road, and died shortly afterward. Owing to the fact that there were numerous bruises about Stearns' head and body, Medical Examiner Lane has ordered the remains held for an autopsy.

A strange coincidence to the finding of Stearns in an unconscious condition, is the fact that his wife, who died about four months ago, was found dead in bed in the absence of her husband. It is said that the authorities have a strong suspicion that both deaths were due to poisoning.

County Attorney John K. Kelly will make an examination into his death to-day.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR PROMISES FALL RIVER SUPPORT

CONTRIBUTIONS COMING IN FROM ALL SIDES IN AID OF STRIKERS.

FALL RIVER, Aug. 1.—Although none of the mills under the cutdown agreement are running any part of their machinery, work for many of the idle operatives was provided to-day by the opening of the Conanicut mills, which manufacture fancy goods under the old wage scale.

The Conanicut mills have been closed for two weeks for repairs. There was a big rush for positions to-day, and enough hands were turned away to operate the plant twice over. These mills are owned principally in Rhode Island, and are not bound by the manufacturers' agreement.

President John Golden and Secretary Albert Hibbart, of the United Textile Workers of America, arrived here to-day from Washington, Philadelphia and New York, where they have been sounding the branches of the American Federation of Labor as to what action they will take in connection with the Fall River strike.

President Golden said that he had received assurances from everybody he met of all the help in their power to carry the strike to a successful issue. Mr. Golden did not see President Gompers personally, but he met his representative and was assured by him that the great organization was in perfect sympathy with the fight being made here, and that financial and moral help would be forthcoming soon.

President Golden said to an AMERICAN reporter:

"We arrived in Washington Friday noon. By appointment we met Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor that evening and a stenographer took the interview, one hour long. Secretary Morrison expressed extreme surprise at the conditions in Fall River and said he had no idea an attempt was being made to reduce the wages of the help so low. He said he did not blame the operatives for striking and would do all in his power to help win the Fall River strike.

The absent officers, including President Gompers, he said, he knew would agree to give assistance. He said the matter should be acted upon immediately upon the return of President Gompers. In case he did not return at once, he said, the other officers would take opun themselves the power to sanction the strike.

Messrs. Golden and Hibbert looked for Mr. Gompers in Philadelphia but learned that he was at a National Glass Workers conference in Atlantic City. The Philadelphia officers of National Glass Workers and the New York Labor Union offered the use of officers and men toward the assistance of the Fall River strikers. From Philadelphia an appeal was sent by Secretary Hibbert addressed to President Gompers asking it to be forwarded to the 2,000 unions and 2,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor.

Secretary Robinson of the Central Labor Union of New York offered to lecture in Fall River when needed and to call upon 100,000 union men of his union to help Fall River.

Many Donations.

Treasurer O'Donnell, of the Relief Committee, has received $100 and an offer of $25 weekly from the Bartenders' Union. He has also received an offer of 1,000 loaves of bread from Alderman Ling, 200 loaves from Henry Clark, baker; offers of assistance from the Chelsea Central Labor Union and an offer of $25 weekly from the R. A. McWhirr and E. S. Brown stores.

Nineteen families, comprising 100 persons, were relieved yesterday at an expense of $40. Other donations brought in by regular collectors aggregate $308.35 up to this morning.

The concensus of opinion among conservative men here, who are thoroughly conversant with the strike situatio is that the inevitable result of the big textile battle that is being fought here will be the elimination of many of the mills that, either through lack of up-to-date machinery or incompetent management, have not been able to keep pace with their more successful competitors.

Th public, at the beginning of the second week of the strike, has about concluded that the cut in wages was not justified, and not a man can be found who will assert that such action will help the situation. With the Borden mills running full time, and other, who were induced to sign the manufacturers' agreement, apparently under a misapprehension, anxious to break away from it, the public has begun to charge the mill agents and managers with the responsibility of the great calamity.

Speaks Out Boldly.

In a sermon preached in his church, Rev. Fr. B. F. McCahill makes this assertion boldly. He referred to the manner of conducting the cotton business in many instances as "figurehead methods."

Here is the hot-shot from the shoulder of the Fall River clergymen:

"Agents totally unfitted to manage such vast interests have encountered the lack of success. They are burdens on the more capable managers, but when the hue and cry for a reduction in wages is raised, the latter are by agreement bound to follow suit.

"Why are not such men removed? Business principles rule in other lines, why should not they govern the management of all our mills?

"If mill owners followed the proper course, they would rid themselves of such officials.

Business men and operatives believe that only the fittest mills will survive, and that the older mills of scant equipment and po[illegible]agement will either be absorbed by the stronger corporations or die. The managers of the second class factories, it is admitted, were sincere in their protestation that they were losing money, but it is believed that they would continue to lose money, even under the cut.

The sentiment that there should be abler if not fewer heads in the city's great industry is noted in the avidity with which the rank and file seize upon every suggestion touching M. C. D. Borden, who has built up Fall River's biggest and most successful plant and is running it full time, with every wheel and cog and spindle turning, all in the face of the city's general difficulty.

Cutdown no Remedy.

When Mr. Borden made overtures affecting the Border City plant the news swept the town. The wish was father to the thought that he would buy it, which, to the popular mind, meant its future success.

When at his last visit to Fall River, M. C. D. Borden spent four hours looking through the Wampanoag plant, one that turns out the very makes that his print works handles, eyes followed him every minute of his stay upon the premises.

"There are commercial reasons why he might prefer the Wampanoag mills besides the other reasons named," said a broker to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "and Mr. Borden is not one to spent four hours in a place for nothing."

There are other able mill men besides Mr. Borden of the opinion that a cut in wages was no remedy for the trouble. Among them S. B. Chase of the King Philip and Osborn Mills, James Cunneen, the recognized head of the Seaconnet plant, and several others.

No attempt was made to pen any of the mills to-day.

Bishop Stang of the Fall River diocese will be home in the course of a week. It is expected that the Catholic clergy of the city, representing 75,000 constituents, will confer with him at the earliest moment. In past labor troubles the Catholic clergy have accomplished much. The recent creation of the Fall River diocese, adding to the local clergy a member of the attainments of Bishop tSang, may prove of inestimable value at this time, for apart from his personal worth, the Bishop has a remarkable tact in adjusting labor difficulties.

The Textile Council will meet Tuesday night to further perfect relief plans.

A meeting of the Central Labor Union relief committee will be held this evening.

The carders will meet for exchange of ideas in Spinners' Hall this afternoon.

Applications for Aid.

The slashers held an enthusiastic meeting to-day, at which addresses were made by several of the men. They all declared that the fight against the cut in wages must be kept up.

An offer of $200 credit was received from the Troy store. An offer was also received of St. Mary's Band Hall free for meeting purposes. The executive board will meet to-night to further the relief movement.

The applications to the Overseers of the Poor have been doubled. Two families to-day applied for funds to bury children.

EPIDEMIC CAUSING ALARM IN FALL RIVER

FALL RIVER, Aug. 1.—Considerable anxiety on the part of the Health Board has been caused by the appearance of a form of illness of a gastritis character. The sickness has almost reached an epidemic. Adults and children are both suffering.

Dr. Edward Herbert, city district physician, said:

"The sickness resembles cholera infantum. The bacillus was discovered by Dr. Shigas. This is the first visitation Fall River has had. Adults and infants are affected alike here. I have dozens of cases daily. It is a pronounced epidemic."

Chemist John Dunn, of the city dispensary said: "We are putting up prescriptions for this epidemic to an alarming number."

3 JAP ARMIES IN 2 DAYS' TERRIFIC BATTLE TURN KUROPATKIN'S FLANK; RUSSIANS FACING ANNIHILATION OR CAPTURE

GENERAL COUNT KELLER

GENERAL KELLER KILLED

AWFUL LOSSES REPORTED

Ikhavuen position, the enemy's main concentration being against its right flank, which was turned.

"The enemy is also acting on the offensive between Liao-Yang and Saematse (almost due north of Fen-Wang-Cheng) against our troops posted at Houtsiatze (twenty-five miles from Liao-Yang.)

"Intelligence has been received of a considerable number of Japanese landing off Yin-Kow (port of New-Chwang), under the cover of several warships.

THREE ARMIES ATTACKED.

Two separate armies were launched from the east, above the two roads, while a third, under General Oku, moved up east of the railroad from Taci-Chao, to try to cut off the Russian force there from Hai-Cheng.

If the latter move is successful the Russian force will be crushed. A portion of General Kuroki's army at the same time advanced against General Count Keller's position at Ikhavuen, east of the Liao-Yang, trying the favorite Japanese plan of outflanking him on the right. Still further north, on the Saematse-Liao-Yang road, the Japanese moved forward against Houtsiatse, twenty-five miles from Liao-Yang.

At all points the Japanese employed artillery to the best advantage.

General Keller was killed while repelling the preliminary attack of General Kuroki's army on the Yantse pass, thirty miles east of Liao-Yang.

The general was standing near a battery, which was subjected to a terrible fire, when a shell burst close to him, and he fell, mortally wounded, dying twenty minutes later.

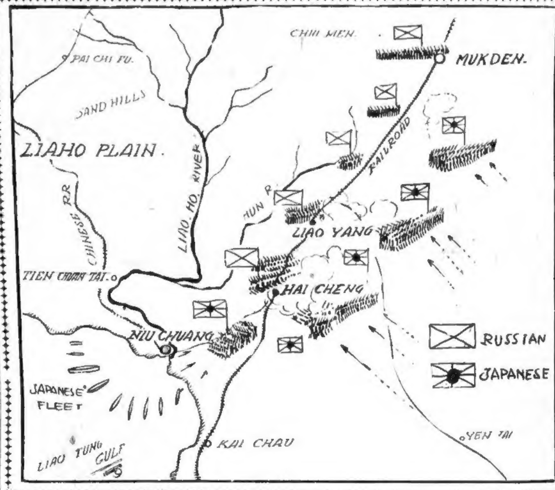

RUSSIANS SURROUNDED.

Generals Oku, Nodsu and Kuroki are in command of the three Jap armies. According to latest dispatches from the Far East, they had almost completely surrounded the Russians, and there was no possible doubt as to the issue of the great battle.

The Japanese are landing more troops. A dispatch from Yin-Kow, the port of New-Chwang, says that considerable forces of Japanese have landed there under cover of several warships.

There is an excellent road leading straight from Yin-Kow to Hai-Cheng, and there are railroad connections as well between the two places. A forced march would take the newly landed troops to the aid of the Japs in the field within twelve hours, should reinforcements be needed.

The death of General Count Keller is likely to have a disheartening effect on the Russians. He was one of the most efficient fighters in Kuropatkin's army. He offered stubborn opposition to Kuroki, although his force was considerably less than those whom he opposed. He was slowly driven back upon the main army, however, and was fighting with them when he was killed by a bursting shell.

THIRD DEGREE KILLS PLEHVE'S ASSASSIN

ENGLAND PROTESTS FOOD AS SEIZABLE

LONDON, Aug. 1.—In the House of Commons this afternoon Earl Percy, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated the Government had instructed the British Ambassador at St. Petersburg to protest against the including of foodstuffs in the list of contraband of war.

RUSSIAN DUKES MAY FORCE BRITISH WAR

LONDON, August 1.—The Russian war cloud looms big upon the English horizon to-day. Within the past forty-eight hours the dominant party in Russia, the Grand Dukes, who forced the war with Japan, have gained the ascendency and the feeling toward England is hostile. The attitude of the English toward the Russians has grown more bitter, and the Government fears that a crisis is at hand.

Count Lamsdorff's ready yielding to the demands of Great Britain in the Malacca incident, and his promise of prompt action with reference to the sinking of the Knight Commander, greatly angered the Russian Anglophobes. They have reprimanded the Russian Foreign Office for so promptly settling England's demands. To prevent another such experience, they have taken the questions as to the observance of the treaties governing the passage of the Dardanelles and the belligerent status of the volunteer fleet away from the Foreign Office.

WOULD PROVOKE WAR.

Such questions will in the future be determined by the Minister of Marine, where the Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch is supreme. This Grand Duke is the most pronounced hater of the English in all Russia. It was he who sent the Red Sea fleet out upon the raid on British shipping, and it is an open secret that he is anxious to provoke a war with Great Britain.

It is felt in London to-day that only the opposition of France can prevent this Grand Duke from forcing a rupture. So far, however, the remonstrance of France has had little effect, and the Grand Dukes are forging ahead on their impolitic policy, apparently inviting war, regardless of consequences.

ENGLISH HATERS IN CONTROL.

The Czar sides with the conservative element in his Cabinet, Count Lamsdorff and M. de Witte, but he has been unable to reconcile the reactionaries and is hopelessly weak in dealing with the situation. The anti-English party is so strongly in the ascendancy that it is believed the Knight Commander incident will not be settled and that further affronts to England will force hostilities within a very short time.

While there is no panic in Great Britain and no frantic demand for war, the feeling of the British public is nevertheless intense. The press comments on the situation show a keen appreciation of its gravity, and the cautious measures of the Government indicate that public officials are responsive to public sentiment.

WATCH FOR VOLUNTEERS.

A significant feature of the situation is the massing of the Mediterranean fleet by Great Britain for grand manoeuvres. Fifty warships have been ordered to assemble off Smyrna.

It may be safely asserted that England will not permit any more disguised Russian warships to pass through the Dardanelles. The entrance to the channel is now patrolled by British ships, and Russian vessels issuing therefrom are carefully scrutinized. Should there be found any evidence that they are other than merchantmen the crisis may be precipitated in an instant by England's action.

HAIL SHELLS ON FORTRESS

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Port Arthur is being subjected to the most terrific assault in the history of modern warfare. A dispatch to the Daily Express from Chefoo says:

"Reports brought by Chinese refugees from the neighborhood of Port Arthur agree in stating that a general assault in full strength is being delivered against the Russian fortress, and an appalling artillery attack is being made.

"The hail of steel being poured into the citadel surpasses anything of the kind ever witnessed in the history of war.

"Four hundred heavy guns, all posted in excellent positions, are at work."

Field Marshal Oyama, in command of the Japanese forces, has formally called upon the Russian stronghold to surrender. The reply as sent from Tokio shows the Russians believe the report that Field Marshal Oyama and his staff were slain on the sunken transport Hitachi, and that General Kuropatkin has not been defeated and is on the way to their relief.

It is the opinion of military experts here that the port cannot long withstand the terrible assault. News of Port Arthur's capitulation is expected almost hourly.

ENVOYS BACK TO ST. PETERSBURG

CARLSBAD, Aug. 1.—American Ambassador McCormick, who has been taking the waters here, has left suddenly for St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—M. Witte, the President of the Council of Ministers, who has been in Berlin negotiating a commercial treaty between Germany and Russia, has returned.

KELLER FOUGHT AGAINST TURKS

Lieutenant-General Count Keller, reported killed by a bursting shell in the battle near Hai-Cheng, succeeded General Zassalitch in command of the Second Siberian Army soon after the latter had been defeated in the battle of the Yalu.

He sustained two reverses at the hands of the Japanese recently, July 4 and July 17, being repulsed in attacks on the Motien pass.

General Keller took part in the three campaigns of the Russo-Turkish war. He possessed cool judgment and was considered to be a fine strategist. He was 55 years old.

BURSTS DOOR, RESCUES TWO FROM FLAMES

Charles Hurley, seven years old, and his baby sister, Ethel, were rescued from a burning building at No. 238 Charles street by Timothy Dumphy, of No. 151 Fifth street, Cambridge. Dumphy burst in a door of the building, fought his way through flames and smoke to the third story, where he had seen the boy hanging limp from a window, and carried the two children down stairs.

A large crowd witnessed the thrilling rescue, and greeted Dumphy with a cheer when he emerged from the building, with a child under each arm. Both children were almost unconscious from smoke, having been overcome while trying to extinguish the flames which started from sparks from a wood stove.

Dumphy was standing on the corner of Sixth and Charles streets, Cambridge, when he saw smoke coming from a third-story window. In a few minutes he saw the boy, pale and unconscious, hanging from the window.

He rushed to the front door of the house. It was locked. Summoning all his strength he put his shoulder to the door, and after a few trials succeeded in breaking the lock. A few leaps brought him to the burning room, and there, lying suffocated with the dense black smoke, on the bed, lay a little girl, while the boy, still limp and helpless, hung from the window. Dumphy first grabbed the boy, and then, groping around, caught the girl, and, with one under each arm, he made his way slowly to the street.

When the firemen arrived the house was in flames, but they were readily extinguished. Mrs. Catherine Rose, the occupant of the house, with whom the Hurleys lived, was out at the time, as were the parents of the children.

SOCIETY GIRL WEDS SON OF A COACHMAN

PRETTY BROOKLINE BRIDE MARRIES IN SECRET, BUT IS FORGIVEN.

Miss Mattie Louise Spencer, a pretty Brookline society girl, daughter of the wealthy editor and proprietor of the Brookline Chronicle, and Norman Lewis Crawford, son of the coachman of the Cabot family, of Brookline, were secretly married on Thursday of last week. The news did not reach any of their friends until to-day, when it was announced by Mr. Spencer, who declared that he had forgiven the elopers and they would make their home with him in the future.

The pretty bride is only nineteen years old, while the groom is twenty-one years of age. Miss Spencer has known Crawford for more than a year, and their attachment quickly ripened into love. They saw each other often, but fear of parental opposition deterred the girl from allowing her friends to share her secret. On Thursday last they went to the Town Hall in Brookline and obtained a marriage license. They next drove in a cab to the home of Rev. William Ellsworth Whitten, at No. 80 Worcester street, Boston, where they were married.

The bride had taken advantage of the absence from the Brookline home of her parents. They had gone to the Spencer Summer home in Wrentham, where she had promised to join them. When she did appear her husband accompanied her, and together they broke the news. Mr. Spencer received them with open arms, and they will spend the Summer in Wrentham.

"It's all right," said the father of the bride this morning, at his office in Brookline. "Mr. Crawford is a fine fellow, and my daughter loves him, and I know they will be happy. I am having the official announcements of the wedding engraved now, and they will be sent to our friends to-morrow," concluded the wealthy publisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will make their home in Brookline as soon as the Summer season is over. It is probable that Mr. Spencer will take his son-in-law into the publishing business as a partner.

LADDER BROKE; 1 DEAD, 1 DYING

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, Aug. 1.—William Verge and Arthur Beriau, both employed by Contractor A. C. Leard, and E. A. Stunstall, an employe of the J. B. Garland & Sons grain elevator, were repairing the roof to the elevator this morning, when a rung in the ladder which held the staging broke, and they fell thirty feet to the ground. Verge died before the ambulance reached the hospital. Beriau arrived there in a critical condition, and there is no hope for his recovery. Stunstall was badly cut about the left eye and right hip, but will recover.

SEES NOVA SCOTIA SHIP BADLY BATTERED AT SEA

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The Southern Pacific Company's steamer Proteus, which arrived to-day from New Orleans, reports having passed the Nova Scotia ship Kings County in a badly battered, but not entirely helpless, condition. The Kings County had lost the fore and main topmasts, the main mast head, mizzen royal mast and jibboom. She was working along under her remaining sails, and as her hull had not been damaged she declined assistance.

BOSTON LOSES BY R. R. MERGER

Disgruntled holders of preferred stock in the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad Company have been placated through purchase of their holdings on the basis of $110 per share, and the merger of that road with the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville and the Pere Marquette is made certain. Through the consolidation Boston loses control of the Pere Marquette.

It is unofficially stated that the Pere Marquette is leased by the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton on the basis of 4 per cent. on the common stock this year and 5 per cent. hereafter.

DR. DONALD IN DEATH STUPOR

Special to the Boston American.

IPSWICH, Aug. 1.—Dr. E. Winchester Donald, rector of Trinity Church, Boston, is sinking fast. For three hours he has been unconscious, and reports from the bedside are that his condition is perceptibly worse. Death is expected at any moment. All his near relatives have been summoned to his bedside.

TELEPHONE IS UP 2 POINTS

Regardless of the wilting heat, which kept the volume of transactions down, prices of stocks went up as a rule to-day.

The special feature on the bull side in the local market was a 2 per cent advance in American Telephone shares. This stock was heavily bought.

There was liquidation in New Haven, which forced a decline of 2 percent.

Amalgamated gained fractionally, Osceola moved up 1½, and Copper Range gained almost 1 per cent.

FRENCH CRUISER DUE IN BOSTON THURSDAY

The French cruiser Dupleix, which is now at Newport, leaves there Wednesday morning for Boston, and is expected here early Thursday. According to custom, the ship will be saluted with seventeen guns by the Charlestown Navy Yard, and courtesies will be exchanged between the Admirals. The Dupleix is 442 feet long, carries twenty-six guns and has a crew of 520 men.

WERE YOU EVER AS MAD AS THIS?

What has happened to Brother S. Z Mark? Can it be that he has again forgotten to order in advance of his newsdealer? By the looks of his face, one might be led to believe that he failed to secure a copy of yesterday's great BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

4 TENEMENT HOUSES AFIRE

A fire that necessitated three alarms destroyed a livery and boarding stable in the rear of No. 611, East Fifth street, South Boston, and damaged four other buildings and nearly created a panic among the residents of the frame houses along East Fifth street, who feared that the entire district would be burned out.

Twenty vehicles in the loft of the stable were destroyed, with large quantities of grain and hay. At one time four dwellings close to the stable were burning, having taken fire from sparks. The total damage is about $9,000.

GIRL SUES FOR $25,000 FROM A LOST SUITOR

Miss Jungers Charges Boston Hotel Proprietor with Breaking Marriage Promise.

Breach of promise, based on the allegation that Allen C. Jones, proprietor of the American House, was her fiance when he married another young woman, is the ground of action taken by Miss Corinne Jungers of this city in an attempt to get $25,000 damages through the New York courts.

Mr. Jones asserts that he can satisfactorily explain his position when the suit is brought to trial.

Mr. Jones married Miss Ruth A. Robbins on June 4. Miss Jungers alleges that she met Mr. Jones in May, 1902, and that a year after that time he proposed to her and was accepted. She further alleges that she informed her friends and relatives of the approaching wedding as she understood it. In concluding her statement she says that his attentions became less and less marked until she heard of his marriage to Miss Robbins.

"I know the young lady who has brought this suit," explained Mr. Jones," but decided to break off my acquaintance with her some time ago for good and sufficient reasons.

"Since that time I have received several letters from New York lawyers telling me that if I would call and see them the matter could probably be settled up satisfactorily, and I have also had threats of a suit to be brought against me. To all of these I have replied they could go ahead and sue."

60,000 MEN IDLE IN READING COAL REGION

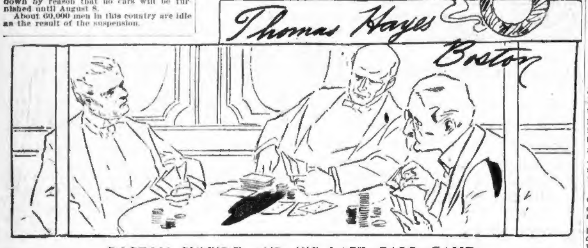

POTTSVILLE, Penn., Aug. 1.—The shutdown at the collieries in the Schuylkill region was completed to-day with the exception of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company's plant, in the Panther Creek Valley. All the individual operations along the Reading system are compelled to shut down by reason that no cars will be furnished until August 8.

About 60,000 men in this country are idle as the result of the suspension.

BOSTON ELK, SUICIDE, AFTER LOSING AT CARDS

"THOMAS HAYES," DEAD IN NEW YORK HOTEL, MOURNED BY MYSTERIOUS WOMEN.

BOSTON SUICIDE AND HIS LAST CARD GAME.

Boston members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, as well as Boston police, are trying to identify the man who killed himself by asphyxiation in the Grand Union Hotel, New York, after registering und the name of "Thomas Hayes, Boston."

An Elks' membership card was found in the pocket of the dead man, but the name "Thomas Hayes, Boston," is not on the roll of Boston lodge. The man had torn from the membership card the flap bearing the name.

The Grand Union Hotel people, according to dispatches from New York to the BOSTON AMERICAN, know little about the man. He came there Friday.

He was a tall, stout man, well dressed, smooth shaven, with blue eyes, big square jaw and dark hair.

In the morning the hotel watchman smelled gas in the hall and the door to Hayes's room was forced. Hayes was in bed dead. He had shut the window, plugged the keyhole and turned on the gas.

Two cents were found in the man's pockets, perhaps all he had in the world. He had staked his last dollar, and with it his life, on the turn of a card while playing Saturday night, and had lost. He proved that he was a good loser.

Shortly after his body had been removed to the Stephen Merritt Burial Company at Eighth avenue and Nineteenth street four women called and recognized the man. All of them seemed deeply grived, but none of them would assist Coronel Jackson in establishing the man's identity or in ascertaining the cause of his taking his life.

The youngest of the three, a very handsome brunette, fell to her knees beside the dead body.

"Oh, my Jack, my Jack!" she sobbed. "You know that it was not my fault that you killed yourself."

The three women had been gone only a short time when another woman appeared and asked to be allowed to see the body of the suicide. She was not more than twenty-five years old, and appeared to be suffering from shock and grief. She fainted when shown the body.

CAMORA AWES FIRST VICTIM INTO SILENCE

Stretched on his bed of pain in his home at No. 21 Tileston street, disfigured for life with murderous stiletto thrusts and stab wounds, Angelo Carpenelli, first of the seven victims marked for death by La Camora, the dreaded Sicilian murder society, has intimated that he knows the names of the men who have nearly done him to death, yet refuses to reveal his attempted assassins, fearing a violent and terrible ending.

The dread of Carpenelli is the dread of the entire Italian and Sicilian population of Boston and its environs. It is the fear transmitted and transfused through the years from times when Italy was in the chaotic state following upon the French Revolution.

Carpenelli would tell if by telling he might bring his enemies to justice; but that he knows would be futile. The ends of justice would be subverted and both he and his would meet a doom in which the ingenuity of Borgian assassination joins with the quick and deadly thrust of the Sicilian stiletto.

As deadly as the machinations of the Mafia Society, whose barrel murder mystery still mystifies the New York Central Office and the finest detectives in the United States Secret Service, the grim agents of La Camora, which is affiliated with the greater Mafia, have served warning to these seven Bostonians whom they have marked for death because of too diligent activity in bringing rascals to the bar of justice.

CALL MANAGER OUT AT 2 A. M.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 1.—Manager John K. Punderford, of the Consolidated Railway Company, embracing all the electric systems centering here, met the employes of the road at 2 o'clock this morning in response to an invitation of the Railway Employes' Union. About 250 motormen and conductors were present. An understanding was arrived at which may prove the basis of a settlement of the employes' grievances.

The men demand a ten-hour day at 22½ cents an hour, an increase of 2½ cents over the present wage rate, and 30 cents an hour for overtime, instead of 25 cents.

Manager Punderford addressed the men in frank terms. He said the management of the road was always willing to discuss with its employes any matter affecting the relations of both parties.

Mr. Punderford afterward intimated that the company would concede 30 cents an hour for overtime, but was understood to refuse any promise for any increase in the hourly rate.

Mr. Punderford in an interview with the AMERICAN reporter to-day said that he did not anticipate any serious trouble with the men.

ANTIS PRAISE FILIPINO PLANK

Representative anti-imperialists from every section of New England will meet in Faneuil Hall to-night to proclaim their cause and give new impetus to the movement toward securing the independence of the Filipinos.

The following resolution will be presented for adoption:

"Resolved, That we heartily commend the Filipino plank of the Democratic national platform and that we believe that the policies and principles therein declared will be indorsed by the American people.

"That we ought to do for the Filipino what we have already done for the Cubans, and it is our duty to make the promise now.

"Place the Filipinos on their feet, free and independent, to work out their own destiny."

Ex-Governor George S. Boutwell will preside and among the speakers will be Charles Francis Adams, Erving Winslow, Bourke Cockran of New York, and Governor Garvin of Rhode Island, Edward N. Shepard of New York, Henry Wade Rogers, Dean of Yale Law School; Lewis R. Ehriel of New York, Prof. Chamberlain of Clark University, Worcester; and Colonel Daniel Hall of New Hampshire, member of the Republican National Convention which last nominated ex-President Harrison.

FORCE AGAIN REDUCED.

FITCHBURG, Aug. 1.—Another wholesale layoff has just been made in the large car shops of the Boston & Maine at South Fitchburg, making the third successive layoff this Summer.

FAIR ITALIAN GIRL HELD CAPTIVE FRIENDS THINK

BROTHER SAYS SHE WAS SEIZED AND DRAGGED INTO WOODS BY SUITOR.

GIRL FRIENDS THINK SHE IS KIDNAPPED.

Search for the missing Anne De Angelo, the beautiful young Italian girl who disappeared while on her way home to Winchester Saturday night from her place of employment on the Symmes farm, and who was reported as having been seized and borne away by an infatuated suitor, ended to-day in the announcement by the Winchester police that she had been located in Billerica, ten miles from Winchester.

Nineteen years old, and but three months in America, the lovely Italian maid has been the object of despairing devotion on the part of dozens of the young Italians who are employed on the big Symmes farm and in the Italian settlement in Winchester. For weeks she has been the toast of devoted cavaliers, foremost among whom was Joseph Angelo, an athletic and handsome young Italian, who boasted that no other man should call the girl his own.

Ran Into the Woods.

On Saturday afternoon Anne de Angelo and two girl companions were returning home from the Symmes farm, where they are employed.

As they neared a dense growth of wildwood near Winchester three Italians were seen approaching them. These men, according to the story told the police by Frank de Angelo, brother of the missing girl, were Angelo and two companions, whose names are known to the police only as "Tony" and "Billy." Without uttering a word, Angelo sprang toward Anne, he says, and seizing her, ran down a path into the woods.

The two girl companions ran shrieking back toward the Symmes farm, where a posse was organized, and an unavailing search of the woods was made.

personally assumed charge of the search for the missing girl.

The police to-day learned that the girl

Frank de Angelo, brother of the girl, reported his sister's disappearance to the Winchester police and Chief MacIntosh had been seen with Angelo in Billerica.

Frank Chillo, an uncle of Angelo, reported to the police that Angelo had met him in the graveyard at East Woburn lasts night and told him that he loved the girl and proposed holding her and marrying her.

COURT TO GET FAN-TAN POINTS

Because the police of Lynn could not tell whether the Chinese game of fan-tan constitutes gambling Judge Berry, in the Municipal Court to-day, continued the case against eleven Celestials caught in a raid on a Chinese laundry at No. 158 Oxford street, until expert evidence could be introduced.

The police thought they had a strong case against the Celestials and produced as evidence 500 Chinese coins, a number of dominoes, red, white and black beans, and several opium layouts. Then Lawyer Joseph Dorrity asked the police what fantan was. The police could not explain and Judge Berry adjourned the case.

ARRAIGN 7 IN SLOCUM CASE

Officers of Company, Inspectors and Captain Plead Not Guilty to Charges.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The defendants indicted by the Federal Grand Jury in connection with the burning of the General Slocum were arranged before Judge Thomas in the United States Federal Court to-day. In each case the defendant, through his counsel, pleaded not guilty, with leave to change his plea or demur on or before the 17th instant. The first defendant arraigned was Henry Lundberg, one of the inspectors who made the inspection of the Slocum on May last. He was released on $5,000 bail.

President Barnaby pleaded not guilty to two indictments charging him with aiding and abetting in the loss of the Slocum. Bail was fixed at $20,000. Secretary Atkinson, Treasurer Dexter, Commodore Pease, Captain Van Schaick of the Slocum and Inspector Fleming, were subsequently arraigned and each through their counsel pleaded not guilty. In the case of Captain Van Schaick, there are three indictments, one for manslaughter and two for aiding and abetting. The indictments against Fleming and Lundberg are for manslaughter. They were paroled in the custody of counsel.

The defendants in the Slocum case will be brought to trial at the October term of the criminal branch of the United States Circuit Court.

HURRIES HERE TO CLAIM GIRL

Little motherless Freida Sokakaski, now sheltered in the Immigrants' Home, East Boston, will be claimed to-day by her father, who is hurrying from Cooks Mills, Michigan.

The child's mother died on the way over to this country in the Cunard liner Ivernia. Her body is now in an East Boston undertaking shop, awaiting her husband's arrival. The Cunard line officials received a telegram to-day from the husband, saying he would be in Boston this afternoon or evening to make arrangements for burying his wife's body and for taking his little girl back to Michigan with him.

Told to-day that "Papa is coming," Freida smiled brightly. She was two years old when her father left their home across the water, so "papa" will come to her practically a stranger.

DO NOT FIND CAIRNS CRIMINALLY NEGLIGENT

No criminal negligence is found against William Cairns, of Malden, in the death of John Dunlop, seventy years of age, of Malden, who was killed by a carriage driven by Cairns on Pleasant street, Malden, several weeks ago. Judge Sweetser conducted the inquest in the Malden Court.

GIRL DROWNED WHILE BATHING

WOODMONT, Ct., Aug. 1.—Miss Grace Sherwood, aged seventeen, of Waterbury, was drowned while bathing here this morning. Miss Sherwood waded out to a sand bar and remained there for some time. When she attempted to return to shore the water was over her head. William G. Curtis, who witnessed the girl's struggles, attempted to rescue her, but before he could reach her she had sunk. Her body was recovered.

SUBMIT NAMES OF 2,000 VOTERS

Fred A. Bolton, chairman of the Republican City Committee; W. T. A. Fitzgerald, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, and John Weaver Sherman, chairman of the Socialist committee, called upon Judge Emmons to-day and submitted a list of more than 2,000 eligible voters whose names were not listed by the police in their general poll. These names will be investigated by the police.

FAITHFUL CROWD CHURCH TO GAIN INDULGENCE

Crowds of worshippers gathered to-day at the Church of St. Leonard, Prince street, to gain the full plenary indulgence authorized by the laws of the Roman Church for their visits to the Franciscan shrine. The services will continue throughout to-day and to-morrow.

The little Prince Street Church is the one spot in New England where these indulgences may be obtained, for the Papal bulls restrict them to the Franciscan churches.

HELD IN $1,000 BAIL.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 1.—Gallallo Roselli, thirty-five years old and married, was arrested yesterday on a charge of attacking a ten-year-old girl named Mary T. Earl. He was held in $1,000 bail for trial Tuesday.

NEWS BY WIRE BRIEFLY TOLD

Major Franklin Gordon, second son of the late General John B. Gordon, is in a Florida jail, the result of alcoholic excess. He has been adjudged insane.

Swarms of Texas cow flies in the northern part of Worcester County are causing an alarming shortage in the milk supply in that section, and the farmers are resorting to an oil spray to exterminate the pest.

Twenty-five fine splinters of glass were taken from the scalp of Edward Nyman, of Gardner, by Dr. A. P. LaChance. They were there through the smashing of a bottle on Nyman's head.

The coal production of the United States during 1903 was 359,421,311 tons, valued at $506,190,733, an increase in output and valuation over anything previously, according to the Geological Survey report.

The fourth run of the season will be taken by the Rhode Island Automobile Club next Saturday and Sunday to Onset, Mass. The distance is about 115 miles.

The heaviest attendance so far recorded for any month at the World's Fair was that of July, 2,343,557 persons having passed through the turnstiles.

JAMES A. SWEENEY ASSISTANT SEALER

Mayor Collins sent the Board of Aldermen this afternoon the appointment of James A. Sweeney of No. 109 Hudson street, Ward 7, as assistant sealer of weights and measures. The salary is $1,000 a year. Sweeney succeeds John L. Donovan, resigned. It is understood that Mr. Donovan will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for representative in his district.

FAST HORSES MET IN RICH SPA HANDICAP

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The opening of the Saratoga Racing Association's meeting to-day has brought the Spa to life. It never could be said to be dead, but the [illegible] shift of the racing scene from New York to the Springs makes the action here of the fastest, and from now to the time the bangtails leave the pace will be furious.

At no other place in the world do people give themselves up to the enjoyment of the hour as they do here when the ponies are running. This was noticeable the first thing this morning, and as the time for the start to be made to the track came there was a suppressed excitement that will last for the full four weeks of the meeting.

All classes of life are here, from the society dame who came in the finest of private cars to the race track tout who sneaked under a bundle of hay in a horse car or on the trucks.

The great game of racing plays no favorites here any more than on the Metropolitan tracks, and the usual army of nondescript track followers rub elbows with members of the "Four Hundred."

The Spa is in its prettiest shape, and the devotees of the turf have a grand setting for the battles of the thoroughbreds that will be waged here. The myriad of gaieties, the flowers and green trees are but side shows to the real game—racing—but are enjoyed before and after the equine battles.

The races promised to be all that the most ardent lover of the game could desire. Six fine events, one of which is the Saratoga handicap, were on the card. In each there was a stirring contest. The handicap was a battle royal in which champions strove for the rich prize and which was one of the grandest races of the year. The field in this race was made up of Waterboy, Hermis, The Picket, Lord of the Vale, Bad News, Africander, Caughnawaga and Pulsus. With such tried performers under silk nothing but a great race could result.

Waterboy, The Picket and Hermis were the favorites. They were backed heavily by the followers of form, and when they pranced to the post each carried a ton of gold.

BIG SPA CLUB CLOSED TIGHT

SARATOGA, N. Y., August 1.—Despite the fact that the Saratoga Club is closed down as tight as a drum, and that there is not even a remote chance of gambling being carried on in this community this season, one of the largest crowds of strangers ever seen in the village is to-day awaiting the opening of the Saratoga season proper this afternoon, with the running of the Saratoga Handicap and the inauguration of the annual term of August racing.

The Saratoga Clubhouse presented a sorry spectacle yesterday. Once the centre of life and gaiety, it stood a dreary sight to all who observed. Rough board planks were ruthlessly laid across the windows of the sumptuous establishment. Canfield's former palace is dark and deserted, and will remain so to the end of the season.

JOE CORBETT RELEASED

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—After suffering for weeks with rheumatism, hoping in vain for relief, Joe Corbett has decided to quit baseball, and at his own request has been released by the St. Louis Cardinals.

For the past two months Corbett has been troubled so with pains across the shoulders, and has been of little use to the local club.

Conscientious to a degree unusually known to ball players, Corbett made known his condition to the local management. The Messrs. Robison, thinking that it was possible for Corbett to regain his health, requested him to take a series of turkish baths, to which Corbett consented.

The baths had a temporary effect on the pitcher, but the rheumatism was not completely eradicated, and when Corbett found that pitching was a torture to him, he went to the Robisons and requested his release.

ABE ATTEL TO REOPEN CLUB

ST. LOUIS, August 1.—No more fights will be put on at the West End Athletic Club until the cool weather sets in, according to Charley Haughton, the club's matchmaker.

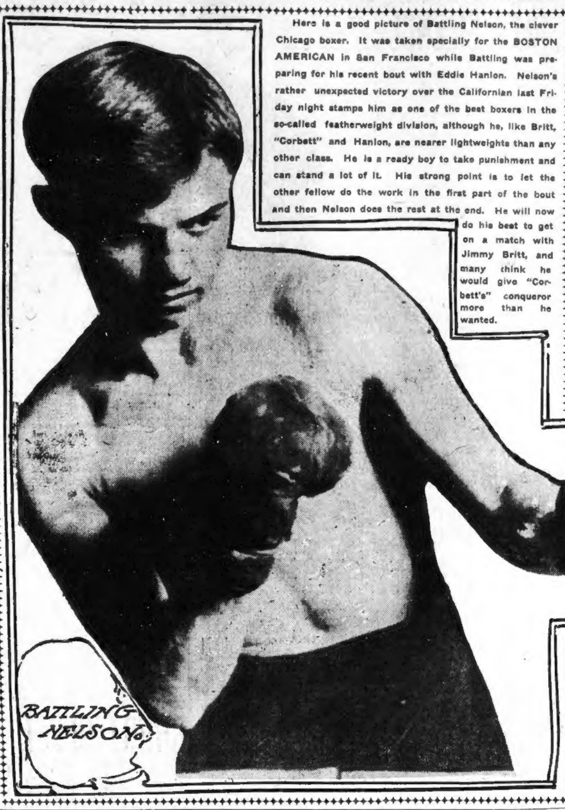

The club will reopen around September 5, with Abe Attell, the San Francisco featherweight, and Jack McClelland, of Pittsburg, for twenty rounds. These boys recently met at the same club and McClelland was rewarded the decision. Both are anxious to hook up again.

HUGGINS TO GO ON TRIP

CHICAGO, August 1.—When the Microbes start on their round-the-world-tour next winter with the Giants as a companion team, that star little second sacker, Miller Huggins, will be a member of the bunch. He will play the middle bag, and Evers moved over to short, as he can hardly fulfil his duties on the base line position as capably as in the regular spot.

While Manager Selee is not getting worked up over the proposed tour, he is confident that the round-the-world trip will materialize, as John T. Brush is deeply interested in pushing the scheme through.

"BATTLING" NELSON AFTER CHAMPION BRITT

SCHOLES WON'T MEET GREER IN SINGLES

Special to the Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, August 1.—Although Lou Scholes, the winner of thir year's Diamond Sculls at Henley, refuses absolutely to enter the single sculls at the regatta at St. Catherine's, which will be held Friday and Saturday of this week, Frank B. Greer, twice national rowing champion of the United States, says he will enter the Canadian races and go over the course without competition, if need be.

Greer is feeling rather glum because of the Canadian's refusal to meet him. Through Scholes's running mate, Fred Smith, Greer also learned that Scholes was likely to compete in the doubles, along with him (Smith), but that he wouldn't row in the singles, owing to lack of preparaton.

Young James A. Ten Eyck, Frank Greer, Constance Titus, George Lloyd, Fred Fuessel and the Atlanta double, of New York, Mulcahey and Varley, will leave for the Canadian championships. Titus believes he will fare better on a straightaway course than one which had turns, like that of Creve Coeur Lake. Jim Ten Eyck is feeling badly over his poor showing in the intermediate singles. He ardently hoped to win this event, and his failure to do so has completely upset him.

CHANCE'S MANY SWATS.

In the National League Frank Chance, of the Chicago Colts, is the real leader in batting, with an average of .365. Mike Grady has a higher percentage, but he has only played in forty-one games. There are only thirteen men who have reached the .300 mark.

HALF EXPENSES PAID.

we have one of the best chances on earth to jump in ahead and we are going to make the best of our opportunities.

"We are all feeling like fighting cocks and are out to win. We don't disregard the fact that the Bostons are a fast aggregation of players, but we believe we are a shade faster, in this case, at least.

Evidently the Bostons were musing on their recent slump on their long journey from the Hub. The causes of the slump were gone over time and time again, but nobody seemed able to solve the trouble. Each player gave his version, but the main cause was not discovered.

SAY THEY'LL WIN NOW.

It seemed the prevailing opinion in the Boston camp that the days of the slump were over and from now on the sailing would be pleasant and sure. "We'll have to do something," said Collins, "that's all there is to it. We've got to stop this bad streak and we might as well start to-day, as any time. We are a better road team than we are a home aggregation; therefore, I look for an instantaneous brace."

Cy Young looked as though he could eat up the home team to-day, while Bernhard was in good enough shape to beat nine out of ten opponents.

WILHELM PITCHES FOR BOSTON NATIONALS

Special to the Boston American.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Brooklyn, Aug. 1.—The Boston club came on the field this afternoon determined to repeat the victory of Saturday, when they pounded Jones's curves for some long sockdolagers.

Manager Hanlon feels keenly the fact that he has a third-rate team. He thought he had a pretty strong aggregation at the beginning of the season, but he has now stopped explaining why the Brooklyns are so low in the league race.

A small crowd saw the game. Brooklyn is not much of a ball town these days, and especially on Mondays the attendance is low. Manager Buckenberger sent Wilhelm into the box for Boston, while Hanlon relied upon Garvin to do the trick for Brooklyn.

PROVIDENCE GRAYS LUCKY.

MONTREAL, Aug. 1.—Rain stopped the game between the Providence and Montreal Eastern League clubs at the end of the fifth inning. The score then stood 2 to 1 in Providence's favor.

POST=SERIES TALK NOT TIMELY NOW

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Ban Johnson's latest knock has been heard in this city. His new roast is chiefly on what he thinks evasiveness of a post-season by the Giants and the Colts in their proposed tour of the world. He declared that Both McGraw and Brush, of the Giants, have been more of a detriment to the game than any two men that baseball has known.

The reason for Johnson's attack on the National League was inspired by the recent raillery of Muggsy McGraw against the American League and himself. Ban says that the true character of the New York president is shown "when he hides behind such a foul bird as McGraw."

Local opinion is divided as to the advisability of a post-season series. Most fans declare that the Giants have nothing to gain and everything to lose by an after-season series, while the Highlanders, should they win, have nothing to forfeit. On the other hand, a good many of the diamond enthusiasts believe this post-season series talk is premature and should be held back until the wind-up, for no team has won either pennant yet.

They are plenty who are so bold as to give vent to their feelings, that this gossip of a post-season series is all poppy talk, and that a press agent is behind it all. Last Spring it was agreed, on motion of President Hart of the Colts, that a post-season series would be played, and few think the National League will go back on the plan.

WOMEN PLAY FOR TENNIS CUP

Special to the Boston American.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 1.—The women's handicap singles tennis tournament for cups offered by Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt began to-day. The big gallery of spectators included the house parties at Reginald and Alfred G. Vanderbilt farms, who came with Miss Burnham, of Boston, and her fiancee, Austin Gray, to cheer Miss Eleanora Sears, of Boston, who was drawn against Anna Sands. Miss Sears, however, failed to appear. Mrs. John Jacob Astor was matched to play Kate Brice, but the latter defaulted.

The playing was the best of the season, and will be continued to-morrow. Summary of first round:

Maud Wetmore beat Anna Fellows, 11—9, 6—1; Mrs. Barger Wallach beat Mary Busk, 7—5, 6—3; Mary Sands beat Helen Weaver, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Pell beat Anna Sands, 6—1, 6—2; Louise Scott beat Adele Bull, 6—2, 6—2; Mrs. John Jacob Astor beat Kate Brice by default; Anita Sands beat Nora Moran, 6—1, 5—7, 6—0.

BIG SWIMMERS IN CONDITION

All aquatic sports will take great interest in the coming race between James McCusker, the professional swimmer of America, and Joey Nuttall, of England.

This match will take place in the Charles River, near Caledonian Grove, August 13. There will be three races, the best two out of three to be declared the winner. The first will be a quarter mile, followed by one at one-half mile, and a mile.

A large side bet will be posted by both men. Nuttall has been in training over at L street for the last three weeks, while McCusker has been doing some fast trials at Revere Beach, and both say that they will be in the best of condition for the event.

McCusker has been defeated once by Nuttall in a half-mile race on the other side. He claimed he was ill at the time, but Nuttall refused to postpone the match. Ever since McCusker has been trying to get another chance with the Englishman, and now he hopes to wipe out his former defeat.

$30,000 HORSE IS KILLED

Special to the Boston American.

SARATOGA, Aug. 1.—The great two-year old filly Bumble Bee, owned by Herman B. Duryea and valued at $30,000, was destroyed here this morning while being worked out at Horse Haven. The great filly ran into the track fence, breaking a leg. She was shot.

Bumble Bee was by Hamburg, and one of the most promising two-year-olds of the year.

FAST PLAYERS IN THE SEMI=FINALS

Special to the Boston American.

LONGWOOD CRICKET CLUB GROUNDS, Aug. 1.—Although the entry list of a week ago numbered seventy-two, and now is cleaned down to but four contestants, more interest prevailed to-day than any time since the tournament started. The fans fully realized that the fight between Ward and Clothier, and Seaver and Wright, to get into the semi-finals, would be a battle royal.

Although Wright was selected as an easy winner over Seaver, the latter had plenty of friends who were confident that he would be returned a winner in the round. The battle between Ward and Clothier was the touted match of the day.

Both had played great tennis during the tournament and it was a toss-up as to who was favorite as far as speculating went.

Ward was looked upon to win by his admirers by his vigorous work at the net. They expected him to return every volley of Clothier with accuracy, cross-courting the ball and smashing it to the side lines with great effect, as he usually does. His great work at serving was also expected to help him win many points.

Clothier, the giant player of the tournament, was picked by many on account of his great reach, ability to cover the court and his accurate work of returning smashing drives.

The day dawned in grand style and the attendance was larger than at any of the previous days. The fair sex were out in great numbers and the grand stand presented a pretty sight as the sun reflected on the colored parasols and dresses of the fair ones.

FLANNAGAN IN RECORD FORM

NEW YORK, August 1.—Friends of John Flannagan, of the Greater New York Irish A. A., are congratulating him to-day for his record-breaking hammer-throw at the Celtic Park games. He hurled the sixteen-pound missile 173 feet, beating the former best world's record fifteen inches.

Flannagan also won a first in throwing the fifty-six-pound weight, second in the discus and third in the shot.

Martin Sheridan also came in for a share of the honors, winning the discus throw with 121 feet 9 inches. Myer Prinstein's broad jump of 23 feet 3 inches was another feature.

LOU DILLON NEEDS REST

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—In ten days Lou Dillon will probably be seen on the track again. The reports that the trotting queen was seriously ill are not so. The mare has been overworked this season and needs a rest.

Saturday the great horse had a little fever, the result of a cold, but at no time were her trainers much worried over her condition.

It has been necessary to keep Lou Dillon keyed up to a high point this season because of her many trials, and naturally she feels the effects.

WALTHOUR WILL BE STAR OF RACE

Walthour and Moran are due to arrive in town to-day, coming direct from the South, where they have been having some red hot battles behind the motors. They will start training at once at Charles River Park for their race at that track to-morrow with Hugh MacLean.

In their races in both Atlanta and Birmingham Walthour was victorious, but he won over Moran by inches only, which shows that the two men are most evenly matched, and that at Charles River Park in a race at the twenty-five mile distance, behind the big motors, the shoe may be placed on the other foot.

Hugh MacLean, by his riding in his races of late, has certainly earned the right to meet these two other stars in a race that will go far towards settling the question of paced championship of the year. Walthour has not appeared in a race in this section since May 31, and has not met either Moran or MacLean in a race on either of the local tracks since last season. Moran and MacLean also have not met in competition for many weeks.

Walthour will bring with him from the South to pace him Gussie Lawson, who piloted him in such a successful campaign in Europe. Fred White will be in the saddle for Moran, while Charlie Turville will handle the lever for MacLean. Besides the paced race there will be a mile handicap and a five-mile open for the amateurs.

MINOR LEAGUE SCHEDULES.

NEW ENGLAND.

Lowell at Manchester, Concord at Nashua, Haverhill at New Bedford, Lawrence at Fall River.

CONNECTICUT.

New Haven at Worcester, Meriden at New London, Bridgeport at Holyoke, Springfield at Hartford.

EASTERN.

BIG TOURNEY AT NAHANT

Special to the Boston American.

NAHANT, Aug. 1.—The week of the special invitation tournament of the Nahant Club started this afternoon. The programme calls for an entire week of playing, and, undoubtedly, some of the best matches ever seen in this district will be contested.

The list includes thirteen entries, and among them are some of the best known players in the country. Those old-timers, R. C. Huntington and M. G. Chace, and the present day stars, W. A. Larned, W. J. Clothier, E. W. Leonard and R. C. Seaver are all slated to perform. The entries follow:

First round—E. W. Leonard vs. T. Motley, Jr., B. B. V. Lyon vs. M. G. Chace, E. B. Bewhorst vs. N. W. Cabot, R. C. Huntington vs. Alfred Codman, G. A. Lyon, Jr., vs. H. J. Holt.

Second round—W. J. Clothier vs. winner of the Leonard-Motley match and W. A. Larned vs. R. C. Seaver.

Amateur Games Wanted.

St. Vincents, of South Boston, want games with any twelve-year-old team, Victors of Charlestown preferred. Michael Murphy, No. 241 Third street, South Boston.

Pattersons, of South Boston, would like games with any ten to eleven year old team. T. Quirk, No. 289 West Second street, South Boston.

Hemlock A. C., of Malden, want to meet any fifteen-year-old team for the championship of the city. A. H. Kirkshaw, No. 65 Suffolk street, Malden.

Young Men's Christian Union team would like a game for next Saturday with some amateur or semi-professional team. T. K. Crawford, room 851, Old South Building, Boston.

St. Mary's, of Charlestown, want a game for Saturday, Iroquois preferred. Bernard Brennan, No. 42 Chapman street, Charlestown.

J. E. Toomeys want games with strong fourteen to fifteen year old teams. I. Sisousky, No. 107 Porter street, East Boston.

St. Philip's A. A. have August 27 and Labor Day open, and want to hear from any strong semi-professional team. John Berry, No. 1,621 Washington street, South Boston.

Millmont A. C. want games during August and September with strong uniformed teams.

Plaid A. C., of Charlestown, want games with thirteen to fourteen year old teams. William Driscoll, No. 185 Chelsea street, Charlestown.

Rockwell and Churchill Press team have Saturdays open during August and desire games with strong teams. H. A. Powers, No. 39 Arch street, Boston.

Crescents, of Dorchester, who recently defeated the crack Columbias, would like to meet either the Assumptions or the Playfairs of East Boston. John Mockler, No. 254 Cottage street, Dorchester.

Franklin A. C., of South Boston, would like to arrange a game for Labor Day p. m. with any fifteen to sixteen year old out-of-town team. Address Edward Donovan, No. 174 C street, Suth Boston.

PIRATES ARE AFTER CHECH

MILWAUKEE, Wis., August 1.—It is reported to-day that Cincinnati will not get Pitcher Chech from St. Paul, as was announced a few days ago. With the arrival of the St. Paul team here, came the news that Cincinnati was after Outfielder Jackson, along with Chech, whom Barney Dreyfuss is also after. St. Paul may lose five and possibly six of its players.

How We May Be Taught by CHILDREN

PAOLO LOMBROSO SAYS WE MAY LEARN FROM THEM TO GET FULL ENJOYMENT FROM LIFE

Copyright, 1904, by American-Journal-Examiner.

WHILE there are many who doubt that we grown people, with our years of training in schools and colleges and our decades of experience, may learn anything from our children, the fact remains that not only are children able to teach us, but many of these lessons are of the highest philosophical importance.

First of all, we may learn from the child how to get the full enjoyment out of life. Many things which appear commonplace and uninteresting to us may become sources of keen enjoyment to us, and this—how to enjoy life in all its every-day and apparently monotonous incidents—is of the highest importance to our happiness.

We have, as a rule, early lost the ability to enjoy the faculty of feeling happy, even if we are not millionaires beset by spleen and neurasthenia. Even the most normal man no longer possesses the ability to feel joy as does the child under all circumstances. If he misses a car or his train is delayed on his way, he is ready to sulk and be impatient all the rest of the day.

We get nervous and cranky when it rains. When the sun shines we declare that we are dying from heat.

When we get a new dress or hat we envy those who can afford to get one that is more expensive. We have not entirely lost the sense of enjoyment; it is only slumbering, and it takes something strong and unusual to wake it up, and generally this is something that is out of our reach.

Here is the point on which we may learn a valuable lesson from the child, who understands to perfection how to find ways and means to provoke joy.

If you observe the children who surround you the first thing which strikes you is their perfect happiness, their satisfaction with themselves and their surroundings. The smallest of them are firmly convinced that their beds, their plates, their dresses, their dolls are the prettiest in all the world, for the sole reason that they are theirs.

"How beautiful it is, how warm it is, and what fine bows there are on it," one of my little nieces said one day of a rather shabby looking muff which she carried. "And just because it is mine," she added. She admired it only because it belonged to her.

Everybody knows how children love to brag and how boundless is their ambition, a fact which has its reason in their vanity and self-contentment. To become a king, a general or a count is the easiest thing in the world to them, and they only have to make up their minds to become one of these exalted personages, and if they a few minutes afterward become bandits, robbers or coachmen, it is not from modesty, but because the personality of a bandit, robber or coachman momentarily appears more fascinating to them than that of a king.

The most commonplace things and incidents become sources of joy to them; everything looks cheerful and bright to them, because they do not derive their joy from their surroundings, but have the elements of joy in their own selves.

Now, there is nothing to prevent grown people from enjoying the same pleasant sensations. Our imagination needs strong stimulants, exciting events, unusual scenery, to be set in motion, but only because we ourselves have allowed it to lose the sensitiveness and buoyancy which it originally had.

And still, contentment and joy are necessary to our welfare, mental as well as physical. We all know that when we feel happy and satisfied, we eat better, sleep better, feel better in every way, are more optimistic, so that we overlook many little unpleasantnesses which we would enlarge on when in our usual morose and cranky humor.

We should learn to create joy for ourselves by trying to look at the pleasant side of everything, and we would soon feel the immense benefit we would derive from the experiment.

Sublime Mother Love In the Maybrick Case

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

AT last Mrs. Maybrick is free!

A strange, sad and, withal, not undramatic story is that of Florence Elizabeth Chandler, as her name was when, twenty-three years ago, at the age of eighteen, she stood up under the orange blossoms in old St. James's, Piccadilly, to be married to James Maybrick, of Liverpool.

Maybrick's sudden and mysterious death; the long trial of the young wife for his murder; the two days' charge to the jury; the verdict, declaring the prisoner guilty; the death sentence pronounced with all becoming solemnity by the Judge; that Judge's death, not long after, in a madhouse—such were the eight years of Mrs. Maybrick's married life!

It was fifteen years ago that the sentence, commuted from the death penalty and depriving the condemned woman of her liberty, went into effect, and for all of this long period the whole English-speaking world has been interested in her case.

Influential friends on both sides of the ocean, ambassadors, even the Lord Chief Justice of England, did all that was possible to procure her release.

From time to time rumors to the effect that the woman was about to be given her liberty would get into the newspapers, and in those rumors the public of England and America took a lively interest.

But beyond all these there was one person who did more than all the others to bring about the condemned woman's release—and that person was the Baroness de Roques, Mrs. Maybrick's mother.

To obtain her daughter's freedom has been the one supreme aim of that mother's life. The seasons came and passed away; wars were waged and dynasties overturned; wonderful things happened in the world of society, in the world of science, in the world of politics; but the only thing that interested that mother was the solitary question: "How shall I get my daughter out of that prison?"

Never was the thought out of her mind. Before the birds began to sing in the morning she was asking herself that question; and long after the busy world had gone to its slumbers that same question she would repeat to herself over and over again.

Back of chief justices and ambassadors, and all strong friends at court and elsewhere, stood the mother with her tireless, indefatigable, unconquerable love for the daughter.

It was a love that would listen to no discouraging word, that would not for a single moment entertain any thought of defeat; that kept straight on toward its mark—the possession of her child.

It reminds us most forcibly of the words of the great Apostle in that famous thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians: "Love never faileth."

Was Mrs. Maybrick guilty of the crime with which she was charged, and for which she was sentenced, first to death, and then to penal servitude for life?

We know not. So far as we are concerned, the question will forever remain a mystery; but about that mother's love for her daughter there is room for but one opinion—it is sublime!

Guilty or not guilty, that daughter is now free, restored to the love that never ceased to strive for the possession of its object, and over all the earth to-day there is probably no happier woman than the Baroness de Roques.

If Mrs. Maybrick is innocent, we are glad she is once more free. If she is guilty, we hope that the suffering that she has endured, together with the influence of her mother's marvellous love for her, may serve to bring about the sincere penitence which shall help somewhat to soften the memory of the evil past.

Queen of the Carnival

BOSTON AMERICAN

DAILY SHORT STORY

By Charles J. Bayne

THE night of the regatta on Lake Arcadia was drawing near and the spirit of emulation ran high. There is one glory of the Venetian Carnival and another glory of the annual festival held under Summer skies on one of the most perfect lakes—moss-margined and calm and transparent—in all the South. The proud contestant who can float to victory on that June night and crown a Queen of the Carnival knows that he has made the surest voyage into that young woman's good opinion.

Featherstone felt in his heart that he needed some such victory as a prelude to one for which he had long been striving, for Cecily's seashel ears had inclined provokingly toward more than one manly member fo the Lakeside Club who chose to whisper under the willows.

So Bob's brow gathered darkly as he surveyed the work of decoration and watched craft after craft tricked out in varied forms and colors. For the contest, be it known, was not of speed, but of taste and beauty.

He walked away from the blossoming fleet which encircled the boathouse, and an idea suffused itself over his face in a light smile.

"Cecily," he said, "do you think you can row alone and keep up with the procession?"

What a question to ask a Naiad! The water was her eleemnt, and she gave him in return a confident smile which made him ashamed.

"Very well, then; you shall be Queen of the Carnival."

He walked over to the secretary and registered.

"Fifty-nine!"

He was last in the long procession.

Then Bob and Cecily disappeared, whispering and laughnig softly.

The night could not have been more auspicious. There was no moon to dim the lustre of the illuminated boats as they tugged at their painters. They were buried in flowers, built up in the form of swans and dolphins and floating castles, their flickering lanters dancing in the soft night wind. The long overhanging gallery, brilliant with its sweeping arc of light, was filled with a multitude of spectators whose toilettes rivalled the richness of the scene below.

The steam launch at last pushed off, drawing in its wake the first fairy vessel, to which another was attached in turn until the long line was extended upon the bosom of the lake, across which the bright procession began like a serpent of fire.

"One, two, three—fifty-eight! Where is Featherstone?"

The last boat was now twinkling away in the distance. No one saw a light craft, carrying twenty square yards of canvas and no light, shoot out from a narrow inlet and take its place immediately in the rear. Nor did they see the dark convoy which quickly followed.

Far down the lake the first boat could be seen making the turn, followed at regular intervals by the rest of the brilliant fleet, swinging around in a graceful curve to return along the opposite shore. A burst of applause greeted each luminous device as it passed the club house.

"One, two, three—fifty-eight! Where are Cecily and Featherstone?" The group of their friends were thoroughly bewildered.

As if in answer to this last hopeless query, a vision of dazzling loveliness arose at the end of the line which eclipsed all its floating rivals as the sun burns up the stars. The convoy in which Bob and his ingenious mechanism bore escort was concealed by the spreading sails of No. 59, which had suddenly leaped into life. Down the broad expanse of canvas rushed a cataract which seemed to circle and seethe around the white-robed Undine whose hair floated about her like an aureole. Her bare, round arms plied the oars to and fro with an easy grace which added to the animation of the picture. Gigantic water lilies gradually emerged behind her, each golden heart suddenly bursting into flame as the rockets rose and burst against the sky. The dolphins in rainbow hues sported about her and the tall reeds tossed in unison with the rhythmic stroke of the oar. A more exquisite moving picture was never thrown upon canvas.

How tame were the lifeless mimicries further along the line! No Triton wound his horn; no swan could bend its graceful throat. The enchanting Undine in her enchanted element was throbbing with life and motion; all else was a painted pageant.

A mighty shout shook the long gallery and a wilderness of handkerchiefs fluttered out toward the nymph and the boiling cataract which had risen from the water.

As the line of boats turned again to pass down the hither side of the lake, the vision disappeared for a moment, but as the procession slowly lengthened out, arose once more in all its beauty. The convoy was again hidden by the canvas. A dead silence greeted every float as it filed before the clubhouse and the judges until the Undine came alongside, and a roar of applause mightier than the first, greeted the splendid apparition.

The judges say there was no occasion to deliberate, and without moving from their places gave their decision for No. 59.

A few moments later Featherstone stepped upon the veranda of the clubhouse and in the centre of the pavilion, before the dancing began, placed upon the Undine's brow a coronal of water lilies.

It was a graceful, happy little speech he made, and won a shower of applause, but as he floated off in the mazes of the waltz with the Queen of the Carnival there was another little speech, more graceful still, which was not without its own species of applause.

A PICTURE FROM THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN

MISS GLADYS VANDERBILT

BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, THE WOMAN'S NEWSPAPER

THIS is the most interesting society portrait that has been printed recently. It is a photograph of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, the young heiress who is well known in Boston, Newport and New York society, and who, it is reported on good authority, has become engaged to Robert W. Goelet.

It appeared in yesterday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN and is reprinted here to call the attention of the readers of this page to the fact that the best and most attractive pictures printed in any New England publication appear each week in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

The best articles printed anywhere appear regularly in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Among its regular contributers are Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Lady Henry Somerset, Bella Blitz, Mrs. Josefa Osborn, designer of costumes for the "400"; Mrs. John A. Logan, Priscilla Standish, Beatrice Fairfax, Professor Garrett P. Serviss, Count Leo Tolstoi, Maurice Maeterlinck, the Rev. Thomas B. Gregory and Alan Dale.

Included in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is the best comic section that is printed. It is in colors, and the pictures are drawn by such famous artists as F. Opper, James Swinnerton, F. M. Howarth and R. Dirks. An animal mask, a cut-out doll and a fifty-cent sheet of music are also included free.

Then there is a magazine section in colors, fully illustrated, that contains features of the liveliest interest to women.

These are some of the things you missed if you failed to read last Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Next Sunday's issue will be even better than the best. Be sure to order next Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN from your newsdealer early.

SHE SAYS WORK IS NOT A CURSE, BUT A BLESSING FROM HEAVEN TO HUMANITY

NO GREATER wrong was ever done to humanity than by giving it the erroneous impression that God cursed man by compelling him to labor. Labor is a blessing, and the men and women who are obliged to work to make a living, are to be congratulated, not pitied. For work means character building—the real purpose of human existence.

There is no more interesting study than the comparison of the methods and habits of people reared in affluence with those of the toilers of earth. Something like two years ago it was my privilege to learn about the benefits of the milk diet, and forthwith I became an enthusiast upon the subject.

Whenever my friends have complained of any indisposition or ailment (not contagious or malignant) a milk diet has immediately been suggested by me. To take a milk diet, or any other health diet, at home, alone, and to continue it for several weeks, while other members of the family enjoy savory food, requires the exercise of some of the qualities which are the foundation of all great characters.

Self-control, self-denial, perseverance, will power, patience, courage and endurance of temporary misery, for eventual benefit, are a few of these qualities.

Many men and women of my acquaintance have started upon the milk diet, and a few have persevered with it until the benefits were obtained.

At the present writing only those people who have had the training of trades or professions—the self-supporting men and women of my acquaintance—have so persevered.

The children of "fortune"—the so-called "lucky ones," born and reared in luxury—abandon the voyage across the Milky Way at the first Reef of Headache, or the second Nausea. Even without encountering these reefs, they grow weary of the monotony of the voyage and are lured back by an odor of boiling coffee or frying ham, to the shores of Self-Indulgence. Never having trained themselves to self-denial, or perseverance, they find the ills of indigestion easier to endure than the exercise of those unused powers.

Even woman's vanity fails to act as a spur, and the pampered daughter of luxury abandons the diet which will give her lilies and roses in place of sallowness and blemishes, and munches her bonbons, devours her numerous courses at dinner and sips her strong black coffee with relish.

It is such a sacrifice and such a bore, "don't you know," to diet! And with powder and rouge and facial massage and modest gowns one can make an appearance.

But the girl born to and reared in a life of responsibility and care keeps to her resolution and perseveres in her diet, and so not only improves digestion and complexion, but strengthens her character.

It is the same in study—not one woman of wealth in one hundred who plans a course of study carries out the resolution, while scores of working women all over the land are cultivating their minds, perfecting themselves in languages and acquiring accomplishments at the same time they pursue some business or profession for a livelihood.

It is according to the old law, that busy people are the only ones who have leisure to do extra things—because they have learned the value of time, the worth of action, the benefit of perseverance.

Thank your guardian angel, young woman, if you are obliged to work. God Himself worked to build this magnificent universe, and is still busy creating new stars and planets.

And in His eternal scheme of life only the workers will find place, since:

Immortal life is something to be earned
By slow, self-conquest; comradeship with pain
And patient seeking after higher truths.

Character alone is eternal, and character is developed through work; the character is weakened and vitiated every time we undertake an enterprise of any kind, whether a course of diet or study, and abandon it.

Whatever you begin to do, carry it through until you have thoroughly tested its merit and usefulness.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Advice to the LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

HEREWITH are printed answers by Beatrice Fairfax to some of those whose heart problems are so puzzling that they have come to her for advice. Letters to Miss Fairfax from women and men, maidens and youths are welcome. They will receive sympathetic attention and will be printed with accompanying answers on the Woman's Page of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am twenty years old. About two and a half years ago, when we lived in the city, I met and fell very much in love with a young man three years my senior. He also loved me. Before we moved, however, we had a slight disagreement, for which I was entirely to blame. I have tried so hard to forget this young man, but it seems that he is always in my mind. We have recently moved back to the city, and I see this young man quite often. The first time we saw each other he bowed and seemed very much pleased and surprised. He expected me to stop and talk to him. As much as I would have liked to, I felt so nervous and bewildered, not to say surprised and pleased, that I passed him. He is a very proud young man, and I think he felt hurt at my manner; and now when I see him he simply smiles and bows, and I think he would not mind renewing my acquaintance. Is it proper for me to stop him and talk, or is it more proper for me to write him or telephone, as he does not know my address and neither do any of his friends? I love him most heartily, and I feel as if I could not possibly live without him.

HEART-BROKEN MAY.

NEXT time you meet him stop and speak a few pleasant words of greeting. By that he will see that you are willing to become friends again. If he does not respond in the same spirit, you will have to give him up. If you become friends again try and avoid quarrelling in the future, and when the fault is yours do not hesitate to say so.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young girl and am employed in a downtown office. There is a young man in another office who sits opposite me, and if my eyes glance toward the window they rest on him. Now, one day he flirted with me and I with him. He asked my friend and me to lunch. We declined at first, owing to the short acquaintance, but after a little coaxing accepted his invitation. He has now asked me if we won't go to Revere Beach with him, and he said he would bring a friend along to accompany my girl friend. He seems to be a perfect gentleman, and is about my own age. I am backward about going and don't think I should until I know him better. However, I ask your advice in the matter.

ANXIOUS.

I WOULD not go to Revere Beach with him until you know him better. Has he called at your house and have your parents met him? If they approve of him it is all right, but do not go to Revere Beach with him until you know him better.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I met a young man about seven months ago, of whom I think a great deal. He says he loves me. He has been paying a great deal of attention to me, calling three and four times a week. A friend of mine told me that he was a married man. As I have never known him to tell an untruth, I would not believe it until I asked him, which I did. At first he said he was not married. Then he told me the truth, and said he was getting a divorce, which he expected to be granted very soon. He asked me to meet him once in a while until things are settled, as he can not get along without seeing me. Now, will you please give me your advice on the subject.

L. M. C.

I SHOULD see as little as possible of him until after he has obtained his divorce. It is not at all proper to receive attention from a married man, and if he truly loves you he cannot but see the justice of your requesting him to stop calling on you until he is free. If he is sincere he will get his decree and come back to you.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN

Girl's Frock

A charming design which is decidedly youthful in its appearance is the little dress shown here in golden brown cashmere and ecru lace. The front of the dress has a broad box pleat down the front and a deep forward turning tuck at either side, under which is fastened the pretty round collar. The waist and skirt are in one and the closing is under the front pleat. The back is characterized by a fitted waist, to which is joined the skirt, having a big box pleat in the centre.

This gives a very pretty back as well as front, and most mothers as well as girls are apt to appreciate any style that is different from the "three box pleats." The bishop sleeve is finished by a wide cuff made of lace, with strappings of material over it. Another pretty development would be of blue henrietta, using narrow blue braid for trimming over a band of white cloth, or white braid might be used alone. For a pretty little frock quite out of the ordinary this is the leader. The style is good and the fit will be perfect.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN will mail a pattern of the above on receipt of 10 cents to cover all cost of handling, etc.

All orders should be directed to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

Sizes 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 years.

LABOR
News of the Unions

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS 96

Contributions to this column should be addressed to the Labor Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN. The editor will be glad to receive and print brief reports of meetings, elections and social gatherings of general interest to union labor.

AT the annual convention of the State Association of Retail Clerks' Unions held at Central Hall, Hyde Park, Nicholas J. Nally of Boston Grocery and Provision Clerks' Union, was elected president of the association. The unions represented at the convention were those of Lynn, Boston, East Boston, Cambridge, Roslindale, Hyde Park, Quincy, Lawrence, Haverhill and Brockton.

John J. Tobin, the retiring president, who was not a candidate for re-election, was the recipient of a set of engrossed resolutions. The other officers elected were:

First vice president, William G. Hay of Roslindale; second vice president, H. E. Halderman of Brockton; third vice president, Miss Nora Quealy of Hyde Park; fourth vice president, James F. Allen of Quincy; fifth vice president, I. A. Bissell; secretary-treasurer, H. S. Packard of Brockton.

Quincy was selected for the next convention, Oct. 30.

NEED BETTER ORGANIZATION.

The need of organizing plumbers and steamfitters of Massachusetts was the topic discussed at the semi-annual convention in Brockton of the State Council of Plumbers and Steamfitters. The convention was attended by fifty-two delegates. President P. H. Griffin, of Salem, presided. A. P. McAree, the statistician of the union, reported that there were more than 1,600 union plumbers and steam fitters in the State, but this did not mean all the men following the trade. He said there is great need for better organization.

The convention decided to instruct the delegates to the convention at Birmingham, Ala., to request that a general organizer be sent here.

ON STRIKE; VOTE $10 AID.

Despite the fact that 560 members of the Somerville tube workers are out on strike, the members of the union yesterday decided that the condition of the striking miners of Cripple Creek, Col., was even more desperate than their own and voted $10 to the miners. A subscription list to raise funds to carry on the strike in Somerville was opened yesterday in Cambridge, and the first to sign was Former Mayor McNamee, who contributed $25.

The men have now been out eleven weeks. They are on strike for an increase of $1 per week.

K. OF L. TO HEAR POWDERLY.

A special convention of the district assemblies of the Knights of Labor will be held in this city on October 17, at which former General Master Workman Terrence V. Powderly will be the guest of honor. It is expected that the visit of Mr. Powderly will have the effect of greatly increasing the membership and general welfare of the organization. The date of the convention was decided upon at a meeting of the Executive Board last night. Two new mixed assemblies are to be established in Boston next week.

HAVE A BUSINESS AGENT.

James E. Hickey has been appointed temporary business agent of the Bartenders' Union No. 77 for the purpose of building up the membership. At the meeting of the union held yesterday afternoon President Kirkpatrick, with the approval of the union, appointed Edward F. Colbert temporary treasurer in place of Martin J. Mattimoe.

LABOR NOTES.

Lumber Teamsters' Union, No. 112, has distributed 750 August buttons.

Michael J. Reidy, of Boston Commercial Telegraphers' Union, has been reselected a member of the international executive board at the St. Paul convention, last week. S. M. Small, of Seattle, has been elected international president. Will C. Long, a former international president, has been elected manager and editor of the official journal.

An important meeting of Sheet Metal Workers' Alliance will be held to-night in Paine Memorial Hall.

The Bricklayers' and Stone Masons' International Union, on a referendum vote, decided to affiliate with the A. F. of L.

Donations for the assistance of Boston Capmakers' Union strikers were received yesterday from the Cigarmakers' Union, Bakers' Union, No. 4, Pant Makers' Union, Vest Makers' Union and Hebrew Painters' Union.

Boston Division 71, Brotherhood Railroad Freight and Baggagemen of America, is to hold an outing next Sunday at Long Beach pavilion, Gloucester. Train leaves Boston at 8:15 a. m. The entertainment committee consists of Tisdale Talbot, P. J. Coyle and Chairman A. M. Roberts.

PLUGGED COINS CLUE TO THIEF

The chief clue to the identity of the burglar who broke into the Guild House Convent at No. 7 North street and stole $485 from a chest of drawers is a box of lead nickels and plugged quarters that had been collected from the poor boxes placed in public places, which the thieves carried off.

The sleuths of the department are running down everybody who has disposed or tried to dispose of such coins. They caught one boy who had passed a lead nickel, but when he told them all about how he got it they released him.

The thief picked the lock of a rear door of the Mother Superior's office and was apparently familiar with the location of the place, for he forced the drawer of a table where were kept the keys, and with one of these opened the drawers where the money was kept.

MISS ALICE MAY NAME SHIP HERE

When the new naval training ship Cumberland is launched at the Charlestown Navy Yard, August 17, the young lady who will christen the new vessel as it slides off the ways will probably be Miss Alice Roosevelt. Rear Admiral George F. Wilde, commandant of the yard, has extended the invitation to Miss Roosevelt through the President, and, though no answer has been received, it is expected that Miss Roosevelt will accept the pretty compliment.

The launching takes place during G. A. R. week, when the President and his family have planned to be in Boston. This will make it possible for Miss Roosevelt to take part in the ceremony. The President and his family may also accompany Miss Alice to the launching, though no set program has been outlined. Admiral Wilde is now in Washington looking after department matters, and it is expected that he will arrange the program for the launching of the Cumberland before he returns to Charlestown at the end of the week.

CRAZY MAN AT LARGE IN FELLS

An insane man, Henry A. Oman, of Circuit street, Melrose, is roaming around in Middlesex Fells, Malden, and as he is violent at times, the police are anxious to capture him. Oman escaped from Danvers Insane Asylum Sunday morning and coming home at dawn to-day pounded his sleeping wife and tried to strangle her. Her face and arms are covered with bruises. Then he took $13, all the change she had, jumped over the back yard fence and disappeared into the Fells woods.

He claims he can talk with and understand birds, insects, trees and flowers. He takes long walks for this purpose. Oman was sent to Danvers in February after a fit of insanity when he beat his wife and entered a neighbor's house and broke a quantity of furniture in his frenzy.

JUDGE UPHOLDS CAT SHOOTER

Judge Bruce, of the Malden District Court, has handed down a decision, in which he declares that it is lawful to shoot a cat on your own premises, no matter who owns it, provided said cat is destroying your property. The Judge has even gone further than this. He declares that it is not an unlawful act even thought it is done on the Lord's day.

This decision arose from a legal controversy between C. L. Harwood and Allan S. Sim, of Melrose. Mrs. Harwood owned a cat. She let it out one Sunday, and shortly after that they heard what sounded like the report of a gunshot in the rear of the neighbor Sim's house.

The cat didn't come back. Harwood asked Sim about it.

"I shot it," said Sim calmly.

"Why?" asked Harwood.

"That cat was a chicken killer," replied Sim. "We have lost nineteen, and I caught your cat with the goods on—it had a chicken in its mouth."

Sim was arrested, but was discharged to-day.

WIDOWS SUE FOR $70,000

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 1.—Suits for $70,000 were filed to-day against Frank A. Sayles, of the Sayles Bleacheries, in behalf of Mrs. Michael M. Mitchell and Mrs. James Allan and children, because of the deaths of Messrs. Mitchell and Allan December 8 last at the result of an explosion of a steam pipe which the plaintiffs declare was defective.

THREE AGED COUPLES AT SACO, ME., TO MARRY

SACO, Me., Aug. 1.—Within a few days the marriage intentions of three aged couples have been recorded in the city clerk's office. They are Dr. John S. Hidden, aged eighty-three, and Mrs. Mahala T. Plummer, seventy-three; the Rev. Hezekiah B. Mitchell, sixty-seven, and Miss Martha A. Babgan, seventy-three years of age; George Silley, aged sixty-nine, and Mrs. Berry, aged seventy-three.

TO LIVE IN SOUTH AMERICA; SOCIETY TO LOSE NATALIE SCHENCK

MRS. GLEN COLLINS, who was Miss Natalie Schenck, of Newport, was one of greatest belles that Newport ever knew.

CAPTAIN GLEN COLLINS, British officer, who wed beautiful Miss Schenck, and is said to have started with her for South America.

MRS. GLEN COLLINS, WHO WAS NEWPORT BEAUTY.

From New Photograph by BOSTON AMERICAN.

Captain Collins Not So Rich as Reported When He Married Famous Beauty.

Englishman Is to Start Cattle Ranch and Live in South Henceforth.

Special to the Boston American.

NEWPORT, R. I., August 1.—There are rumors here that the handsome and popular Natalie Schenck, who married Captain Glen Collins, who was once in the British Army, is not the possessor of so many millions of dollars as were believed to have been his and further, that he and his handsome wife, have sailed to South America instead of returning to his estates in England.

Three or four seasons ago Mrs. Schenck, mother of the beautiful Natalie, came here and took an unpretentious villa, but they were known to some extent to some of the cottagers, because Mrs. Schenck, who was a Morgan, had held, through her family, a certain position in New York society.

But it was beautiful Natalie who carried the day with her charming manners and beauty. The men raved about her and the women petted the beautiful New York girl. No social function, after the Schenck's first season here, was complete without Natalie.

Some of the best known bachelors were devoted admirers of the most popular girl of the season, but she seemed not to care for marriage.

When the season of 1903 closed Miss Schenck and her mother went to California. Somewhere in the West Captain Glen Collins met her, and he became desperately infatuated with her. It is said he followed her in a special car to Monterey, Cal., and pressed his suit so hard that the quiet marriage, with only a few of her relatives, soon took place.

They came to New York after their wedding and the friends of Natalie gave them a warm welcome. They came here in June and took apartments at the Cliffs Hotel, and were to have taken a cottage for the season, but they departed and word passed about they were to spend the Summer in Europe.

Instead they sailed for some place in South America, where they will reside, and where Captain Collins is to start a cattle ranch.

MALDEN MAN IS MISSING

John Cox, fifty-eight years old, of No. 63 Sprague street, Malden, has been missing from his home for three weeks. Mrs. Mary Thompson, a dressmaker, about forty years old, of No. 3 Carter's place, a frequent visitor in the Cox household, could not be found to-day.

Mrs. Cox said to-day to a BOSTON AMERICAN correspondent that she has heard from her husband only once since he went away. She received a letter postmarked Back Bay, Boston, as follows:

"I may be home in a day or a week or never. I am going to New York. I inclose you $2, which is all the money I have except my carfare. JOHN COX."

Mrs. Thompson came to Malden two years ago from Bucksport, Me. According to Mrs. F. L. Fraser, who now lives at No. 3 Carter's place, Mrs. Thompson said when she went away that she was going back to Maine.

Mrs. Cox was a widow when she married her missing husband. They have a son, Frederick Cox. Mrs. Thompson had two children, but both are dead.

PRITCHETT AND DRISCOLL SAIL

The Cunard line steamship Ivernia, sailing to-morrow morning, will have among her saloon passengers many Bostonians prominent in business and social circles. There will be in all 1,090 passengers, divided into 90 saloon, 100 second cabin and 900 steerage.

Among the prominent saloon passengers will be President and Mrs. Pritchett, of the Institute of Technology; Rev. H. Bingham and son, Charles N. Barnett and Mrs. Barnett, Dr. S. A. Ellis and Mrs. Ellis, J. E. Sanford and Miss Sanford, Mrs. J. H. Sanborn, Mr. L. Wiesseline, Mrs. George Linder and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. S. Noyes, Mrs. L. Putnam and Mr. Dennis D. Driscoll, delegate of the A. F. of L. to England.

A large party of labor men will be at the pier to give Mr. Driscoll a hearty send-off. Mr. Driscoll goes as one of the two fraternal delegates from the American Federation of Labor to the British Trade Congress.

The other fraternal delegate, W. D. Ryan, is secretary-treasurer of District No. 12 of the United Mine Workers of America, and lives in Springfield, Ill.

TOWNS GREET WANDERERS

Massachusetts began to-day the celebration of the week of all the weeks of the year, "Old Home" Week, and everywhere a joyous welcome is being extended to returning sons and daughters and brothers and sisters. The cities and towns celebrating include: Amesbury, Abington, Centreville, Colrain and Falmouth, Greenwich, Great Barrington, Granville, Hull, Harwich, Lunenburg, Ludlow, Milford, Melrose, Merrimac, Medway, Millis, Marshfield Hills, Manomet, New Marlboro, Northfield, Sunderland, Southampton, Southboro, Townsend, Wilmington, Wales, Warwick, Ipswich and Sutton.

Band concerts, athletic events, street parades, fireworks and banquets and a score of other forms of amusements have been arranged for the enjoyment of the visitors. Special religious services were held in many churches yesterday.

DR. EASTMAN CAN'T GET BAIL.

ALFRED, Me., Aug. 1.—Dr. Charles A. Eastman, proprietor of the Old Orchard Sanatorium, convicted of manslaughter, is unable to get bondsmen, and it is believed he will have to remain in jail until the court acts upon his attorney's exceptions in December.

HORSE MANGLES BOSTON WOMAN

Mrs. Louise Merri, said to be from Boston, was seriously, if not fatally, injured in a trolley accident at Shippan Point, Conn. She was driving with her husband and nephew when an automobile came up in the rear. She turned to the right and threw her vehicle directly in front of an electric car. All three occupants were thrown out. The horse was dancing about wildly and stepped repeatedly on the face, arms and body of Mrs. Merri. Besides external injuries she suffered severe internal injuries and shock. The other occupants of the carriage escaped uninjured.

RULE AUTOS OFF OF FERRYBOATS

Authorities Allow Taking on of No Machines Unless Fires Are Extinguished.

ECHO OF SLOCUM HORROR

By the notice of enforcement of the United States enactment against the carrying of automobiles operated by petroleum products, all machines except electric motor cars are ruled off the Chelsea ferry, machines of all kinds are tabooed by the Nantasket Steamboat Company, and only electric machines and other cars of other motive power, with fires out, are included in the eligible freight list of the North and South Ferries. The notice was given out by Steamboat Inspectors H. M. Seeley and A. J. Savage to-day.

The law has been on the United States statute books since 1901, but was not enforced until the Slocum horror called attention to it.

The law provides that all machines in which the motive power is furnished by gasoline or any petroleum product must have the fires extinguished before boarding a steam vessel, and must be taken off the vessel before the fires are relighted.

The penalty for steamboat masters, owners or agents for infractions of this act is a maximum fine of $500.

Although the ferry companies will lose many hundreds of dollars per year in fares from observing this act, the automobilists themselves will feel its weight most.

Inspector of Buildings Kelly was the first recorded sufferer to-day of the new enforcement. While entering the Boston slip of the North Ferry he was ordered by the gatekeeper to xtinguish the fires of his gasoline machine.

PLANS PLEASE ROCKEFELLER

John D. Rockefeller is greatly pleased with the plans for the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, which have been made by a firm of Boston architects, Shepley, Rutan & Coolidge. The plans have been approved by Mr. Rockefeller, as well as by the city building authorities of New York, and work on the buildings will begin at once.

The cost of the institute buildings will be $350,000, and they will house what Mr. Rockefeller hopes to be the greatest laboratory of medical research in the world. The faculty is headed by Dr. William H. Welch, of Johns Hopkins. It is said that a number of Boston surgeons have been offered places on the staff.

Mr. Rockefeller's baby grandson, Jack McCormick, died from an unknown disease, and this decided the millionaire oil man to found the institute.

Things Are Worse in England, Brethren

The Story of the Laborer and His Taxes Ought to Cheer You Up

When people in this country get too gloomy, too mad about their own "down-trodden" condition, and about the special privileges of wealth, it is well to show them that they might be a good deal worse off than they are.

If the ordinary worker lived in England, with the taxes all piled on to the backs of the workers, and no tax on the dukes and lords that own the land, he would really have something to complain about.

Consider the case of Andrew Colquhoun, who lives at Glasgow, in Scotland, under the glorious British rule.

This man—paying taxes all the time—worked for $4.25 a week in a bottle works for a while. He was discharged when there was no more work, but his taxes went right on.

Did he own land or automobiles or yachts or stocks or bonds? No—he owned nothing but the clothes on his back—but he paid taxes, all the same, police taxes and other taxes. At the very time that his tax bills were coming in his wife was notified by the authorities that she must go to the poorhouse with her children, since they had nothing to eat.

Between the last of December and the first of May our British laborer had four days' work and earned about four dollars. In May he succeeded in finding a very good job at five dollars and a half a week.

Immediately he received from the British Government a formal "Notice of Arrestment," which was sent to his place of employment. Here, for your information, is a copy of that interesting document:

> Notice of Arrestment. Final Intimation. Office of Collector of Police, etc., 11 Tobago Street, Glasgow, 12th May, 1904. Mr. Andrew Colquhoun, 23 Hozier Street. Police, etc., Assessments, 1903-1904. Notice Previous to Arrestment of Wages.
>
> Unless your Police, etc., assessments (amount £ : 12 : 4) be paid here within two days from this date, your wages will be arrested for payment of same.—Arrestment 5-6 Extra.
>
> The Wages Arrestment Act allows arrestment of wages for payment of rates and taxes, whatever may be the amount of wages earned.
>
> .....Sheriff Officer.

You will observe that when a British workman has had a starving wife and children to add to his gayety through the Winter, and when he finds a job in the Spring, he gets a notice that the British Government will "arrest"—that is to say, seize—his wages unless he pays taxes for police, etc.—IT DOESN'T MATTER HOW LITTLE WAGES HE IS GETTING, EITHER.

The "down-trodden" of this Republic might at least comfort themselves with the knowledge that conditions here are better than they are in Great Britain.

Suppose the man with a wife and children working for five dollars a week were told in Boston that he must pay taxes to support the Police Department, or have his wages seized by the Government, and suppose that the same man knew that the owner of twenty million dollars' worth of land was paying practically no taxes at all, what would public sentiment say, and how big a police force should we need?

Yet that is exactly the condition of the laborer in Great Britain—and in Russia it is infinitely worse.

Let us not cease striving to make things better over here, but let us remember gratefully that it might be a great deal worse.

No, Mr. Bennett, You Are Wrong

Come Home and Take a Closer Look

Tall, thin, intense, unusually intelligent, and altogether charming, is our sprightly but distant contemporary, Mr. James Gordon Bennett.

He has done some good yellow things in his day, and he may do others later when he gets tired of the mere reaping of rewards.

We admire this gentleman's originality so much that we hate to give him anything but praise, but he must be corrected this time. He says in an editorial—which he wrote himself, no doubt:

"What the Democrats needed was A MASTER. They have found one in Judge Parker, and he may yet lead them out of the wilderness."

Mr. Bennett, you never were so wrong in your life. The Democrats do not need A MASTER—they do not NEED one, they do not WANT one, and they won't HAVE one.

The Democrats still cling to the impression that the men of this country are their OWN masters, and that this country was established in order that men—that is to say, the public—might have SERVANTS, and NOT masters.

Mr. Bennett's friends, the Russians, have got a master, as thorough as anybody could wish, and the results are just what the Russians deserve.

The Democrats do not need any master. They are not looking for a superior to take them by the hand.

They want a man who will represent them—carry out their orders.

Little Editorials from the People

THE BOSTON AMERICAN welcomes its growing army of correspondents, who write their views on the many questions in which they are interested, but for the sake of all, and in order to give the hundreds who write to it a chance, it is requested that all make their "little editorials" very brief. Letters of from 100 to 200 words will speedily appear. Longer ones must wait, and are likely never to see the light.

A PROTEST AGAINST INJUSTICE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The condition of affairs that exists at Fall River is, I believe, the greatest outrage against human rights that ever stained the records of any manufacturing trust in America.

Is it not time that the more fortunate people of the neighboring cities should arise in righteous indignation against such heart-rending oppression? Is it not time that a Congress by the people and for the people should select a modern Daniel to read the hand writing on the wall?

The criminal behind the bars is provided with food and clothing, but here we find an honest, law abiding people reduced, or driven by the avarice of a few to the very verge of starvation, receiving scarcely enough for their sweat and toil to keep body and soul together. Is it not possible to eliminate this tyranny, which has ruled and ensnared poor, struggling humanity?

Cambridge. H. A. McCARA.

ARE PRISONERS ENTITLED TO MORE CONSIDERATION THAN BRUTES?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Are not small offenders against the rights of propery punished in this country out of all proportion to their offenses?

The terms of imprisonment imposed upon small offenders against property rights are about four times as long in this country as in Europe, while the rich and powerful go free here as well as there.

That there is room here for improvement every student of life will admit. While we might await patiently the convenience of politicians for the introduction of needed reforms, shall we sit quietly by when we see the administration of dedicient laws put into the hands of incompetent, brutal and even criminal officials? If the letter of the law is already unnecessarily harsh, shall we permit the harshness to be illegally intensified, the law even violated in the treatment of prisoners who yet remain our fellow creatures and are often more sinned against than sinning?

Evidence of cruelty and brutality to prisoners has been sent to the Grand Jury. Why does that body refuse to act? We protect horses against brutal drivers. Are prisoners entitled to even less consideration than brutes?

Boston. GEORGE W. GALVIN.

WHAT DO YOU SAY TO THIS, MR. LETTIGER?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I beg to differ emphatically with John K. Lettiger. He asserts that all our institutions of freedom and justice are derived from England, and in the same breath he tells us that his ancestors "fought her in the Revolution." Now why did they fight her? Was it in order that they might get a duplicate of her constitution?

If his question whether this country ever derived a single benefit "from the thousands of Polanders that come here," or if "the stiletto-wielding Italian is helping our body politic one iota," is a sample of the English justice we derived, then it is time for us to get an American freedom and justice of our own.

Let Mr. Lettiger look around and he'll see that we live in the Twentieth Century, not in the Thirteenth or Fourteenth. He will observe that human nature is pretty near the same everywhere, and that there are good and bad people in every nation. He will have to admit that a good, intelligent Polander or Italian is as good as an Englishman of the same class, and a lot better than the London slum-raised one.

Charlestown. ARTHUR H. CARLSON.

Which Do YOU Like the Best?

Write a Letter and Get an Original Signed Drawing by a Famous Artist, Suitable to Frame, FREE!

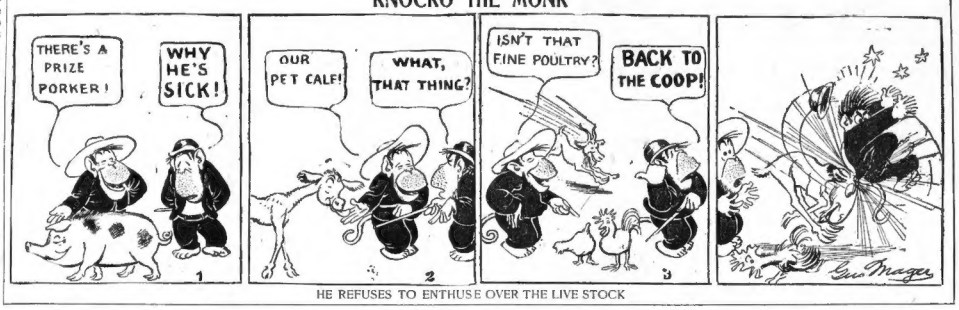

READERS of this page do not need to be told that the very best work of the best comic artists in the world appears on it regularly. Some of our readers, however, have recently taken exception to the "Knocko the Monk" series. Their letters of protest have met with a warm defence from other readers, who say that "Knocko the Monk" is the best of all. The Editor of this page would be pleased to meet the wishes of the majority of the readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN. To effect this, you are invited to send in your preference of all the various funny pictures printed here in writing.

WHICH OF THE SERIES OF COMIC PICTURES DO YOU LIKE BEST?

It is the intention to print the letters that are sent in, and in order to make the letter writing more interesting the Editor has set aside a number of original drawings of comic pictures, which have appeared on this page, to be given to the writers of the most interesting letters. These drawings are in black and white, and are considerably larger than the reproductions which have appeared in the paper. Each is signed by the artist, and all are suitable for framing.

Address your letters to the COMIC CARTOON EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, 80 and 82 Summer Street.

MR. E. Z. MARK BUYS A GOAT

No. 1. MRS. SUBBUBS—What! You bought that goat for Willie? Paid twenty-five dollars for it! Are you crazy? Don't you know it is a hundred dollars fine for keeping goats in this borough?

MR. SUBBUBS—Gee! No, I didn't! I can't lose the twenty-five, though. I'll have to try to stick Mark with the goat.

No. 2. MR. SUBBUBS—Yes, it's too bad, Mark. I bought this trained goat for my little Willie, but my wife will not let him have it. You don't want to buy him, do you? Twenty-five dollars.

MR. E. Z.—Goodness me! Just the thing for a birthday present for my nephew. I'll take him, Subbubs.

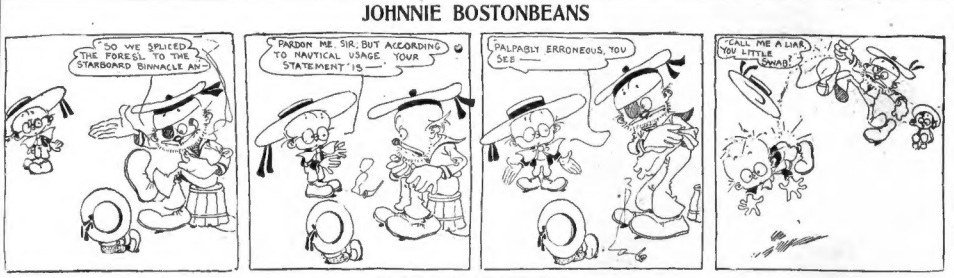

No. 3. MR. E. Z.—Mary, just see what I bought from Subbubs for our nephew. I'll buy a wagon and harness and have it ready when he comes down next week.

MRS. MARK—E. Z., I'm afraid there's something wrong. I'm afraid you are blindly running into trouble again.

No. 4. THE CONSTABLE (a few days later)—Sorry, Mr. Mark, but I'll have to trouble you to come with me down to the Squire's office and pay a hundred dollars fine for keeping goats. Yes, the borough confiscates the goat.

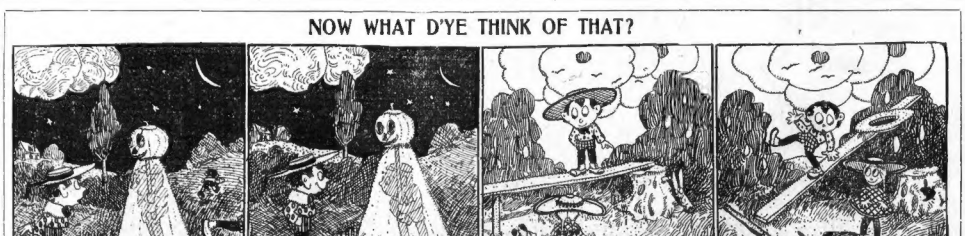

MRS. MARK—I told you, E. Z., you were running into trouble. A hundred and twenty-five dollars gone.

NOW WHAT D'YE THINK OF THAT?

"I am a ghost!" cried Benile Yeat, "An awful fierce one, too."

"I'm sure you are," said William Carr, "'Cause I can see through you."

"Lets play this board is London Bridge," Said little Sammie Brown.

"All right," said Fay, "and now let's play That it is falling down."
